STARR CABINET.

While my life and health are spared I propose to perfect and extend the work already accomplished, and respectfully invite your co-operation. Please furnish correction of any errors, and supply any omissions discovered in this book, and send me dates of birth, marriage, and death, as they occur in the future of the family, with any other information of interest pertaining thereto. Funeral sermons, obituary notices, newspaper articles, and old family letters are especially solicited. Then, when my work on earth is finished, they, with all my Starr family papers and documents, will be put in a cabinet, marked "STARR FAMILY," and placed in the Conn. Historical Society, at Hartford, where they will be most carefully preserved for the use and benefit of the future generations of the family.

PREFACE.

WHY, AND HOW THIS BOOK CAME TO BE.

Laid aside from active business and from all the cares and excitements of a too busy life—actuated by honest pride of ancestral name, and deep interest in our family history—I commenced in my somewhat wearisome retirement the agreeable task of collecting these Starr Records. It was not undertaken for my own gratification merely, but as a labor of love, to collect and preserve these precious family records, which are fast becoming obscured by age or utterly lost by careless neglect;—to be finally deposited in the archives of the Conn. Historical Society, for the free use of the future historian or any interested member of the family, confident that they would appreciate even the small aid thus lovingly rendered for the benefit of all the family.

I imagined a pleasant labor for a twelvemonth, and the cordial co-operation of every one who bore the name of Starr, not doubting that, even though they were not as interested as myself, they would be glad to furnish what information they could of those they once called dear, and thus for ever preserve their names, deeds, and memories; and would even thank me for the gratuitous work I had undertaken. Just here came my first sad surprise and disappointment; not so much in the additional time required for the work, as in the perfect indifference, lack of sympathy and interest in the subject itself, which I met with in so many persons and families of our name. In the great struggle of life there is little room for sentiment; but wherein is man above the "beasts that perish" if he has no sacred family instincts; no veneration or regard for kindred or ancestors; no pride at the recital of their noble deeds; no love for ancestral home and blood, those ties that connect him with the generations of the past;—no holy memories, no tender thoughts of the fathers whose name he bears and whose blood courses in his veins? Esau was accursed for selling his birthright for a mess of pottage;—we have inherited a good name from a long line of honorable ancestors;—let us not despise our birthright by indifference and cool neglect, for "a good name is better to be chosen than great riches," and the lineage of a man is of more importance than the pedigree of his horse.

One unfamiliar with genealogical research has little conception of the time, labor, expense, and patience necessary in getting up a work of this kind. This book has cost eight years of constant labor, as health per-

EXPLANATORY.

OF NAMES. To find any name, refer to Index at the end of the book.

OF DATES. According to OLD STYLE the year commenced the 25th of March, and March was called 1st month, April 2d mo., May 3d mo., etc. At the adoption of the NEW STYLE in 1752, 11 days were dropped from the calendar, the year commenced Jan. 1st, and between Jan. 1st and March 25th double dates were frequently written; giving both the O. S. and N. S., thus: 1754-5; 1769-70, etc.

OF NUMBERS. Each number represents one family, under which is given the record and history of its head, the names and numbers—except in families of the living generation—of its line of descent from Dr. Comfort Starr, the common ancestor; followed by the names of the children, to each of which is prefixed a +, a letter, or a number, signifying:

+ , Died under 15 years of age; name not indexed.

LETTER, Full record here given; no other mention of the name, unless followed by a reference number.

NUMBER, Refer, for his or her family record.

Let one clearly understand this simple plan of numbering, and all difficulty and confusion will be avoided, while the descent, the generation, and the degree of kinship of any and every one can readily be determined. Take, for example, Frank F. Starr 211 B, and myself (Burgis 193), and set down our ancestral lines as given in his father's family record, and in my own—with the generation, thus:

GEN.	Family No.		Family No.
I	1,	Dr. Comfort,	1,
II	7,	Thomas,	7,
III	165,	Comfort,	165,
		his son. ——— his son.
IV	Comfort 169,	Brothers.	197 Joseph,
V	Jehosaphat 175,	First Cousins.	198 Joseph,
VI	William 177,	Second Cousins.	207 Nathan,
VII	Comfort 183,	Third Cousins.	209 Nathan,
VIII	Burgis 193,	Fourth Cousins.	211 Elihu,
IX			211B Frank.

This example, I trust, will render the plan of arrangement intelligible to all, and the solution of similar problems of kinship may be a source of gratification and amusement to some.

“Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations; ask thy father and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.”
—Deut. xxxii, 7.

DR. COMFORT STARR,

The founder of the Starr Family in New England, and the honored ancestor of all whose record is herein contained, lived in Ashford, County of Kent, England. It was on the coast of Kent the Romans first landed, and the county was the scene of many important battles and events in the early history of England. How long the Starr Family had lived there, or where they came from, is unknown. The earliest date found on the records in connection with the name is the baptism of Margaret Starr, Jan. 5, 1583-4.

Ashford, once called the “Manor of Esshetesford” is a small town forty-five miles southeast of London. The most conspicuous object to the traveler, as he passes through on his way to or from the continent, and the most interesting to all who love our name, is the grey old parish church of “St. Mary,” a large building, with three aisles, transept, three chancels, and a beautiful tower of stone. Its age is unknown; it had stood for centuries when, early in the seventeenth, our ancestor worshiped within its walls and brought his children to its altar for baptism. Its ancient tombs, bearing the dates respectively of 1490, 1564, and 1591, were as old and remote to him as the French and Indian war is to us, and as we shall be to some of our descendants who will read these pages. In this old town Dr. Comfort Starr lived in the practice of his profession as surgeon, or surgeon as it is now called, and was evidently a man of wealth, for he owned an estate there which he retained until his death, and when he came to this country brought three servants, which a man of small property could hardly have afforded in those days. That he was a man of position and some importance is certain, for in 1631 he was warden of St. Mary's Church, and at a vestry meeting held in 1632, it was voted "That Comfort Starr should lend to Jno. Langford the sum of £12 on the security of his house, it being copyhold, etc."; and in 1634, only a short time before he left Ashford, was one of a committee to make repairs on the church of St. Mary.

Dr. Comfort Starr had two brothers and two sisters:

- A. JEHOSEPHAT, lived in Ashford, Eng.
- B. JOYFULL, lived in Ashford, Eng.
- C. SURETRUST, lived in Charlestown, Mass.
- D. CONSTANT, lived in Charlestown, Mass.
- E. [THOMAS STARR, yeoman of Canterbury, Eng., wife Susan, and one child, sailed from Sandwich in 1637 for New England. He d. before Mch. 2, 1640-1, in Boston, for on that day his wife was granted administration on his estate. Savage calls him brother of Dr. Comfort. He came from the same county, it is true, and may have been a connection; but had he been a brother, surely Jehosaphat (A.) would have remembered his widow and child in his will, wherein he made bequests to all his friends and relations in New England.]

A.

JEHOSEPHAT STARR, brother of Dr. Comfort, left a will, dated Feb. 2, 1659, recorded in Canterbury, Eng., in which he says: "I give my wife Mary all my lands, barns, etc., situate in the Parish of Willesborough in Kent, now in the occupation of Edward Watson, also 32 acres of land in Ashford in the occupation of John King, also 32 acres of land in the Parish of Ruckinge near Romney Marshes, and after her death to go to my dear brother Comfort Starr of Boston, and after his death to be equally divided between Samuel, Comfort, Elizabeth, Benjamin, Jehosaphat, John [probably Josiah], and William, children of Thomas Starr, and Elizabeth, Judith, and Liddia, children of John Starr." Also legacies "to John, Elizabeth Fernside, Mary Maynard, and Comfort of Carlisle, Eng., sons and daughters of Comfort Starr, and his grandchild Symon Eire &c." "To my brother Joyfull Starr all my land at Appledore." Also bequests "to my sister Constant, the wife of John Morley of New England, to my sister Suretrust, the wife of Faithfull Rouse of Charlestown in New England, to my three servants, &c."

B.

JOYFULL STARR, brother of Dr. Comfort, lived in Ashford. His wife Margaret d. July 24, 1636; afterward had wife Martha, and as the parish records of St. Mary show, had children: John, d. Aug. 18, 1635,—Jehosaphat, bap. Aug. 26, 1632, d. June 23, 1635,—Thomas and Elizabeth, bap. Nov. 16, 1634,—Joseph, bap. Oct. 18, 1640,—Joyfull, bap. Jan. 12, 1642-3; also William Eddy, servant to Joyfull Starr, d. Feb. 25, 1636-7.

C.

SURETRUST STARR, sister of Dr. Comfort, d. Jan. 8, 1685, æ. 86, thereabouts. She m. FAITHFULL ROUSE; they came to Charlestown, Mass., were there in 1641. He was made a freeman May 29, 1644; admitted to the church July 1, 1643; his wife joined the year before, and their dau. Mercy in December, 1643. Dr. Comfort in his will, "Apl 22 1659, appoints my beloved brother-in-law Faithfull Rouse supervisor &c." He was a saddler; d. May 18, 1664, at Charlestown. Their dau. Mercy m. — Swett.

CONSTANT STARR, sister of Dr. Comfort, b. in Eng., d. Apl. 29, 1669, in Charlestown, Mass. In her will "she remembers brother Joye Starr, sister Suretrust Rouse, cousin (nephew) John Starr, sen., sister Ann Farmer, cousin (niece) Mercy Swett, cousin (nephew) Simon Eire, cousin (niece) Elizabeth wife of John Fernside, and Elizabeth wife of Joshua Edmunds." She m. JOHN MORLEY, who in 1645 was a freeman in Braintree, Mass.; removed to Charlestown, where they were both received into the church Aug. 29, 1658. He d. Jan. 24, 1661, leaving by will all his estate in New England and in Cheshunt, Co. Herts, Old Eng., to his widow.

The name of Starr is now extinct in Ashford, its old home: there are several families, however, of the name in the county. A part of the family estate is in the possession of John R. Lewis, Esq. Nothing remains connected with our name but the venerable church of St. Mary; that is full of tender association of our ancestor, and while its arches echo to human feet, will be a sacred shrine of pilgrimage to all who love and honor the name of Starr.

"The man who feels no sentiment of veneration for the memory of his forefathers, is himself unworthy of kindred regard or remembrance." —
Daniel Webster.

Why the Doctor left Old England to make his home in the New, in the absence of any authentic information leaves room for each one of his descendants to form his own opinion, and to answer the query for himself, if he had not done so, where should we have been? For reasons no doubt satisfactory to himself, and we, as good children, must acquiesce in his decision, decided to emigrate; and, taking part of his family, left Ashford, with all its tender associations of home, and the grave, not yet grass-grown, of his little boy, in the church-yard; went to the seaport of Sandwich in Kent, and embarked for the new world. The record at Sandwich tells the simple story thus:

“Comfort Starr of Ashford, chirurgeon Three children and Three servants, embarked themselves in the good ship called the Hercules of Sandwich of the burthen of 200 tuns John Witherly master and therein transported from Sandwich to the Plantation called New England in America with the Certificates from the ministers where they last dwelt of their conversation and conformity to the Orders and discipline of the Church, and that they had taken the Oath of Allegiance and supremacy, Certificates signed “EDM. HAYES, Vicar of Ashford.

“JNO. HONEYWOOD, }
“THO GODFREY, } Justices.”

Dated Mch. 21, 1634, 5.

Edmund Hayes, A.M., was vicar of Ashford from Dec. 20, 1622, to obt. 1638.

As the name of his wife does not appear on the above list, it is reasonable to suppose that the Doctor, with his three boys, the oldest about 18 years of age, came on in advance, and that she, with the younger children, followed subsequently; that there is no record of the fact is not surprising, for the Act requiring the registration of emigrants in England was in force only a short time, and it is well known that but few of the great number who sailed from there were ever registered at all. It is certain that all the family came to New England sooner or later, although one daughter, Hannah, did not come until after her father's death in 1660.

After his arrival in New England, Dr. Comfort made his residence at New Towne (Cambridge), in the practice of his profession, and his name frequently appears on the records there. His first land purchase was the following:

“June 19, 1628.—Jonathan Brewster of Duxbury, gent for £ 150 sterling to him in hand payd sould vnto Comfort Starr of New Towne (als) Cambridg in Mattachuset Bay chirurgion all the messuage or dwelling house, in D. wherein the said Jonathan Brewster do live . . . also four score acres of vpland and fiue acres of meddow ground &c."

The Doctor took immediate possession of his new purchase in Duxbury, and his coming was evidently appreciated, for the General Court of Plymouth Colony gave him the following privilege:

"July 2, 1638.—Liberty is graunted to Mr. Starr to cutt hey this yeare at . . . or els vpon the hey ground graunted to Captaine Standish and William Alden, and to buy a house there if he please to winter his cattle, and the Captaine and Mr. Alden will pay him for it what it is worth when he hath donn wth y^t."

Also

"Aug. 7, 1638.—The Colony graunted 120 acres of land vnto Mr. Comfort Starr, lying betwixt the North Riuer and the South Riuer, and such part of it to be meaddow as shalbe thought meete and conuenyent &c."

"June 4, 1639.—He was admitted a freeman of Duxbury and sworn."

The following interesting items connected with our ancestor are from Ply. Col. Rec.

"Aug. 3, 1640.—Will^m Godden the servant of Mr. Comfort Starr, for is wrongfull complaint against his Mr. is censured to sitt in the stocks and to have XX^s for his service for the tyme past."

"Sept. 27, 1642.—He was deputy from Duxbury to the General Court, to puidе forces against the Indians for an offensive and defensiuе Warr."

"Jan. 3, 1642-3.—In the difference betwixt Mr. Comfort Starr & Thomas Clark for tenn shillings remayneing of XX li X^s for a coue, the Court doth order that the said T. C. shall pay the said C. S. the said X^s."

In 1643 his name appears in the list of males in Duxbury between the ages of 16 and 60 able to bear arms.

The Doctor, probably finding Duxbury too small a place for extensive practice, or for other reasons, disposed of his land there and removed to the larger town of Boston.

"Oct. 27, 1647.—Comfort Starr by Guifte gaue vnto his son-in law John Maynard one pcell of meadow and upland conteining by estimacon 22 acres lying in D. . . . the said C. S. doth hereby acquit and disclaim any right title or interest y^t he or any other by him shall or may, by any p'tence lay claime vnto the same otherwise than aboue menconed &c."

His house and the remainder of his land in D. came into the possession of his son John [see deed in Family 10], whether by gift or purchase no record is found to show, and he removed to Boston, settled in the northerly part of the town on the highway leading to Charlestown ferry, and partly bounded by the mill pond, living in his own dwelling-house, with a little house, perhaps his office, adjoining. After 1649, his name frequently appears on the Probate records of Boston, now as witness to a will, then deposing to a death, appraiser, administrator of estates, etc., etc. That he had a large professional business in B. is inferred from the fact that at his death the estate had claims against seventy-eight different persons.

The following suit, before the General Court of Plymouth Colony, is worthy of preservation in full, not, however, that the example of our worthy ancestor in going to law should be followed by any of his descendants—far from it—but to show the interesting particulars of the information, and the justice of his claims, and to wonder that so much could have been done for so small a price, and—he got his case.

“Oct 6 1657.—Mr Comfort Starr complained against John Williams Senr in an action of the case to the damage of £40, and is for severall journeys, attendance, phisicke, and surgery, care and skill in the applying of medecens externally, all which was don on the wife of the said J. W. att his request, his wife being greivously afflicted with a desparate, dangerouse sore on her left thy or hipp, which had been some years in breeding or growing, for which the sd C. S. hath required paiement, and hath not paiement made him. The Jury find for the plaintife fourteen pounds, beside what hee hath received, and the cost of the snite. The charges came to 10s. Judgement granted according to the verdict.”

DR. COMFORT STARR'S WILL.

“It is appointed unto all men once to die,” so our ancestor, in anticipation of his approaching end, made eight months before his death the following will, which is clearly written with his own hand, on one side of a large sheet of thick laid paper, sealed with a small, plain, red wax seal. This venerable document, in excellent preservation, is on file in the Probate Office of Suffolk Co. at Boston, Mass. The following verbatim copy was made June, 1878. The first line and signature are fac-simile.

EDW. RAWSON. Recorder.

The original inventory of his estate, taken Feb. 3, 1659, by John Chickering and Edwart Burt, is still on file in the Boston Probate Office. It is exceedingly interesting, but its great length precludes its insertion in full; the following items must suffice:

"Siluer and gold in his pvrse, £2, 2, 8d;" wearing apparel; an extensive variety of household furniture, much of which would be highly valued by his descendants of the present day who have a passion for the antique;
"watch, clock, 8 pieces of Plate, a small chest of Phesicall things, musket and sword, jacke, bookes to the value of £7, medicens and other phesicall things, in potts and glasses with some surgeons instruments, fiue mares, one three year old horse, a share in three coults, a cow and a bull. The dwelling house and y^e little house adjoyng with y^e land & appurtenance appertayning," &c. There are more than 100 items filling several pages.
The debts due the estate were from 78 different persons. The funeral expenses were £13, 13, 8d.

In the settlement of his estate, the following record is interesting:

"Whereas the late Comfort Starr formerly of Eshitisford lately of Boston, chirurgeon, by his will, gave a bequest to his grand children being in number 24, the sum of £48, ordering his son Comfort Starr of Sandhartz in co of Kent Eng to make payment aforesd, and in four years after his decease to pay to his executor John Starr in good Kersey &c . . .

whereas the sd Comfort has sent the same consigned to Joshua Atwater of Boston merchant and he hath made payment in full unto me, I hereby acknowledge to have received the above £48 &c. Dated Aug 24 1663 being the 15th year of the reign of our sovereign lord Charles II by the grace of God of England, Scotland, France & Ireland, King, defender of the faith, &c."

MARY STARR, dau. of Dr. Comfort 1, b. in Eng., was not living Apl. 22, 1659, when her father made his will, containing bequests to her five daughters, she m. at Duxbury, Mass., Apl. 6, 1640, JOHN MAYNARD, a carpenter employed Mch. 4, 1638-9, to build a prison for the colony at Plymouth; in 1640 a grant of land was made him adjoining land of Comfort Starr, in D; in 1643 able to bear arms, in 1644-5 was juror, also surveyor of highways, freeman, etc., in Duxbury. They must have left there about the time her father did, for in a sale of land Aug. 20, 1647, they are called "of Boston," where administration was taken on his estate Nov. 12, 1659, by his (2d) wife Elizabeth. The name is known of but one of the

FIVE DAUGHTERS,

Lydia Maynard, she m. Joseph, son of Joseph and Ruth (Starr), Moore of Sudbury, Mass., who was b. Mch. 7, 1658. (See Appendix A.)

5.

HANNAH STARR, dau. of Dr. Comfort 1, bap. July 22, 1632, in St. Mary's church, Ashford, Eng., where she was living in Apl., 1659, when her fathers will was made, by which he gives her "my silver guilt double salt celler, etc.," she afterward came to New England, and d. Nov. 19, 1674, "buried in the orchard," at Portsmouth, N. H. On the flat slab that covers her grave is the following inscription:

"Here lies Burried y^e Body of
Mrs Hannah Cutt
Late wife of Mr John Cutt
aged 42 years who departed this life on the —
Day of November 1674."

This is the oldest stone in New England, to the memory of any of the Starr family. She m. July 30, 1662, Hon. JOHN CUTT, son of Richard, of Strawberry Bank, Eng., a native of Wales, a member of Cromwell's Parliament, he came to New England before 1646, settled at Portsmouth, N. H., was an opulent merchant, and a public man, holding for eleven years the chief office in the town; in 1665 was elected one of the associates of the County Court, and annually from that time until 1679, when he was appointed by "Royal Commission, President of his Majesty's Province of New Hampshire." He did not live long to enjoy the honor, but died universally lamented, Mch. 27, 1681.

The following Proclamation was issued by the Council of the Province, Mch., 1681:

"Upon serious consideration of the manifold sinful provocations among us, as of the sundry tokens of divine displeasure evident to us both in the present dangerous sickness of the Hon. President (Cutt) of the Council of N. H., in the continuance of whose life is wrapt up much blessing, whose death may occasion much trouble, as also in respect of that awful, portentous, blazing star, usually foreboding sore calamity to the beholders thereof, do appoint next Thursday, being the 17th day of this instant March, a day of public fasting and prayer, to be solemnly kept by all the inhabitants thereof, hereby strictly inhibiting all servile labor thereon, &c."

His will says, "I commit my body to a decent burial in my orchard, where I buried my wife and children that are dead." This lot on Green street, Portsmouth, enclosed by a wall of masonry, was used for a family burial place for many years, until by the growth of the city it was thickly surrounded with buildings. But in this age there is no more rest for the dead than for the living; accordingly in 1876-7, the remains were carefully exhumed and removed to "Harmony Grove Cem." to remain until that spot is wanted for a "building lot." In the grave of Mrs. C. the discolored earth and a few bones were all that were found. The President's second wife, Ursula, was killed by the Indians on her farm in the summer of 1694, with three men she had employed in haying.

SIMON, son of Dr. SIMON and MARTHA EIRE, b. in Eng.; came to New England April 15, 1635, at the age of 11, in the "Increase," from London. They both died near the same time, for on the 19th 6^{mo}, 1653, an inventory was presented of the estate of Simon Eire, Jun., and Lydia his wife decd, and Dr. Comfort Starr, admnr., was appointed guardian to their

SON,

Simon Eire, b. Aug. 6, 1652, in Boston, to whom his grandfather made a bequest "for furthering him in Learning" (see Dr. Comfort's will, page vi). He became a merchant in New Haven, Ct.; m. July 22, 1679, Mrs. Elizabeth Allerton, widow of his cousin, Benjamin Starr [8], and had two daughters, who secreted in their own home in N. H. the Regicides from their pursuers.

7.

DR. THOMAS STARR, son of Dr. Comfort 1, b. in Eng.; when he came to this country is uncertain, but probably with his father. From the records of the Colony it appears that

"May 17, 1637. He was appointed "chirurgion" (to the forces sent against the Pequots).

"March 6, 1637-8. He was accused for speaking against the order of Court about swine, and the samed pved that hee said the law was against God's law and hee would not obey it, so hee was comited and enjoyned to acknowledg his fault, and at the Genfall Court was fined 20^s and to give security for his fine or pay the same before releasement."

"March 12, 1637-8. His fine was moderated to 5^s w^{ch} is to bee discounted out of his wages for the voyage against the Pecoits."

Nov. 25, 1639. Thomas Starr of Duxborrow . . . sould one frame of a house wth a chymney to be set vp and thacked in Yarmouth in the place appoynted and seaventyene acres of vpland in two divisions, and twelue acres of marsh meadow vnto the said house, and meadsteed belonging, in Yarmouth The frame of the said house is to be made and sett vp wth a chymney and to be thached, studded, and latched (daubing excepted) by Will'm Chase who was agreed wthall and payd for the doing thereof by the sd Thomas Starr before the bargaine was made &c.

"June 17, 1641. He shall haue two acres of land in some convenyent place assigned him for one acre of his land giuen to the town (Yarmouth) to gett clay vpon "

"March 3, 1644-5. He shall haue psently layd forth for him at Yarmouth 50 acres of vpland at Seshewit and 6 acres of meddowe, lying in Nobscusset meddowes and 4 acres more of meddow on the south side of the plantacon towards the south sea."

"Oct. 19, 1658. Generall Court held at Boston.

Whereas Mr Thomas Starr, deccased, hauing left a desolat widdow and eight smale children was y^e chirurgion of one of the companjes y^e went against the Pequotts in ans^r to the request of seuerall genth on y^e behalfe the court judgeth it meete to grantt fower hundred acres of land to the sajd widdow and children and doe heereby inpower y^e Tresurer and Capt Norton to make sale or otherwise to dispose of the sajd lands as may best conduce to y^e benefit of the widdow and children, as they shall see meete."

There is some difficulty in tracing the history of Dr. Thomas, for another Thomas Starr was cotemporary (see Appendix A), but there is no question as to his children, for the Colony records give the birth of all but one. The will of his uncle Jehosaphat, in 1659, at Ashford, [A, page ii] confirms the record, and the disposition of the above grant of land settles it beyond dispute. The deeds, dated in 1733-4, recorded at length in the Worcester Co., Mass., land records, were made by the heirs of widow Rachel Starr, and signed by the children of Samuel, Comfort, Jehosaphat, and Josiah. Benjamin had no heirs, and of Elizabeth (Treadwell) nothing is known of her family.

It is quite evident that Dr. Thomas lived in Duxbury, Scituate, Yarmouth, and in Charlestown, Mass., where in 1654 he was clerk of the Writs, a householder with small income, and died Oct. 26, 1658.

1639 Of his wife it is only known that her name was Rachel, ^{Hempstead} and it is probable that she went, after his death, with her younger children to Hempstead, L. I. _{in 1658}

JEHOSAPHAT STARR, son of Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Jan. 12, 1649–50, at Yarmouth, Mass. There is no record whatever of him after the above date of birth; what became of him is therefore unknown, but that he married and had three children is altogether probable from the following records, showing a brother and two sisters who were heirs of Rachel, wid. of Dr. Thomas Starr. Now as all the other heirs are known and identified, these must be the children of Jehosaphat, being the only one whose family is not recorded.

The following deeds on the Worcester Co., Mass., records, confirm the above relationship. They are dated Nov. 5, 1733, and Nov. 12, 1734, when Archibald Greenfield, with his wife Hannah of Lyme, and her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Ward (widow of Capt. Thomas Ward), of Middletown, descendants of the widow of Thos. Starr, late of Charlestown, decd., release all right in grant of land made to said widow, etc.

JOHN STARR, son of Dr. Comfort 1, born in England, probably was one of the three children who came with his father in the "Hercules" to New England. His name first appears on the Plymouth Colony records in the list of males in Duxbury between 16 and 60 years of age able to bear arms. In 1645 he, with others, petition for land in Bridgewater, a part of Duxbury extending westward. June 7, 1652, he was one of the "Grand Enquest," whatever that may have been. In 1653 and the three years following, was on the grand jury of the Colony; and in 1649-50 was surveyor of highways. But the most interesting record of him, and one of the few precious relics of our family, and the oldest in existence, being now 224 years old, is the original deed, signed by John Starr, witnessed by Capt. Myles Standish, disposing of his house and lands in Duxbury, it being the same property bought by his father in 1638 of Jonathan Brewster. This ancient deed, well preserved, framed and under glass, can be seen hanging in "Pilgrim Hall," Plymouth, Mass. It is dated Aug. 28, 1655, and reads:

"Bee it knowne unto all men by these presents that I John Star of Duxboro doe hereby acknouledg to have absolutely barganed with and sould unto Christopher Wadsworth of Duxboro all that my mantion and dwelling hous now situated and standing in Duxboro together with fortfoor acre of upland joyning there unto, all so all that my marsh or medow both fresh and salt lying on both sides the crick eastward from the said house that is now, or hath bene formerly knowne to bee, the proper lands and meddowes of me the saide John Star, all so on parsell of upland lying on the east side of the saide medow knowne &c from the hands of Master William Collins and joyning to the marsh, together all orchards, Barnes, outhouses fences and all other immunities &c also fourd fored acres of upland and medow talying in length and breadth according to the ancient and former grant once granted unto Jonathan Brewster, sum time owner of the lands, house and land &c For and in consideration of one horse coult at prise six pound tenn shillings w^{ch} I have received together with to be paid in Beefe, Pork, Butter Cheese, &c at current price.—to be paid in Boston, possession gieu next Millkmas day &c."

He removed to Boston, and lived neighbor to his father "in the northerly part of the town near Charlestown ferry on the highway toward the water grist mill," and was the executor of his father's will in 1660. He was called carpenter and housewright, and his name frequently appears on the records in the purchase and sale of real estate in Boston. He became unfortunate in business, so that at his death the equity of his mortgaged property would not pay the debts, and his son Eleazer appointed Jan. 11, 1703-4, administrator on the estate, sold May 8, 1704, by permission of the court, the homestead, "bounded west on the street leading to the ferry for £50."

In the administrator's account, rendered Feb. 24, 1704-5, are the following items: Two Coffins, 22s.; Graves, Bells, and Palls, 21s. 6d.; Sugar, 3s. 6d.; two Gravestones, £1 6s.; Wine for both burials, 3s. 4d. There is no record of his death or that of his wife, but from the above, it is evident they both d. in the winter of 1703-4.

A Will, most fortunately discovered in Boston Probate Office, has thrown great light upon the family of John Starr, bringing order out of confusion, and is authority for the above record, as the following interesting extracts show :

"Will of Eleazer Lusher of Dedham, dated Sept. 23, 1672:—I give unto Lydia Starr the dau. of my wife's sister who hath lived with me from her infancy £100, to be paid 3 mos. after her marriage . . . and a part &c., after the decease of my wife who is her aunt."

"Will of Mary Lusher (his wid.) dated Jan. 8, 1672-3:—I give unto my sister Martha Starr of Boston £20; unto the eldest son of my brother Jonathan Bunker of Charlestown &c, unto my kinswoman Lydia Starr

&c . . . that if she have no heirs of her body she can make a will, and give the same to her near relations, that is equally to be parted between her brother Eleazer Starr and sister Judith. My mind and will is that my cosen [nephew] Comfort Starr shall have the whole remainder of my estate. I give my now dwelling house, orchard, homelot &c &c for the sd Comfort Starr to be delivered unto him & stated upon him at the æ. of 21 years & until that time the sd Comfort Starr & his sister Lydia Starr is to have the full benefit & revenue of sd houses and lands equally divided between them, if the sd Comfort does not live to attain the age of 21 years, then my mind is, that his brother Eleazer Starr should have and enjoy the whole Est that Comfort should have enjoyed as is above expressed. I appoint my loving friend Ens Daniel Fisher of D and my loving brother John Starr, for the performing &c to aid my Ex &c, and do earnestly request them to take especial care that my kinsman Comfort Starr may in Dedham be trained up, under good goverment & if it may be taught some good trade," &c &c.

ELEAZER STARR, son of John 10, Dr. Comfort 1, I find no record of his birth. His name first appears Sept. 20, 1664, when a cooper, with consent of wife Mary, he mortgages his dwelling-house in Boston. In 1696 his father "John Starr, sen., sells land bounded E. on the land of my son Eleazer." In 1704 he administers on his father's estate, and is then called a housewright. He d. In 1719, is called a baker, with wife Margaret. In 1735, and afterward, is called cordwainer. That the baker and cordwainer are the same person there is little doubt, for it is always wife Margaret. In 1738 he buys a house "on the lower end of Sudbury St., abutting on the Mill Pond." The following records are doubtless of this Boston family, descendants of John Starr, but with so many bearing the same Christian name, without anything to designate to which family they belong, it is impossible to locate them or trace the line with any certainty. It is earnestly hoped that further research may do it, and that some old family record may be found among living descendants that will solve the difficulties.

SAMUEL STARR, son of Dr. Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, the founder of this branch of the Starr family, was probably born in Massachusetts. Although no record of his birth has been found, his descent from Dr. Comfort and his parentage are indisputable, from a deed on the records of Worcester Co., Mass., dated Sept. 28, 1734, signed by his children and grandchildren as heirs of Rachel, the widow of Dr. Thomas Starr of Charlestown, Mass., deceased, thus settling any doubts of his parentage which have heretofore been raised. His grandfather, Dr. Comfort, made the following bequest in his will, dated April 22, 1659: "I giue vnto Samuell Starr my large booke of martyrs with ye frame belonging therevnto."

The first mention of his name in New London is of his marriage. Dec. 23, 1664, with HANNAH, daughter of JONATHAN and LUCRETIA BREWSTER, and grand-daughter of Elder William Brewster, who came over in the May Flower. She was born in 1643; Nov. 25, 1691, was in full communion with the First church in New London, where her children were baptized. There is no record of her death.

He was one of the early settlers of New London, and a prominent man in the town, holding the honorable office of County Marshall (High Sheriff) from 1674 to his death. In 1670 he proposed to establish a ferry at Norwich, and lands were voted him for the purpose, but probably proving unprofitable, he gave it up and forfeited the grant.

He lived on the old "Buttonwood corner," now corner of Main and State streets. There is no record of his death, but as a grant of land, made to him June 22, 1687, was deeded away by his widow, Feb. 22, 1687-8, his death occurred between those dates.

GROTON FAMILY.

Groton, New London Co., Conn., situated on the eastern side of the Thames river, was originally embraced within the limits of New London. The two Starr brothers purchased a large tract of land about a mile above the New London and Groton ferry, bordering on the river. The homestead, still in possession of the family, was on or near the bank, a delightful eminence, commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country, the river, harbor, and Long Island Sound. The old, weather-beaten, quadrangular “meeting-house,” where they worshiped and where their children were baptized, has long since disappeared, but is remembered by some of their descendants, with its broad entrance doors on three sides of the building,—its massive naked timbers projecting nearly two feet from the wall,—its high-back, square “pew” apartments, with uncushioned pine-board seats,—the quaint old pulpit, perched high above the congregation, with its huge “sounding-board” suspended over the minister, suggesting to the imaginative mind of the boy, during the long sermon, the frightful consequences if the staples should pull out and that ponderous thing should fall on the sacred head of the preacher.

When the first death occurred in the family, the grave was made on the farm, as was the custom in those days, toward which the funeral procession has ever since been moving, gathering from every generation, until this silent family is larger than the living. Tradition says. “Little Caty Starr was the first one buried there.” She died April 18, 1734, æ. 10. This family grave-yard descended to Dea. Richard Starr by inheritance, who gave it by deed “July 12, 1783, to Walter Buddington, James Street, Capt. Jasper Latham, Samuel Lester, Capt. Joseph Starr, Vine Starr, John Bacley, Thos. Lester, Joseph Baley, Obadiah Perkins, Starr Chester,—all of Groton, and to the town of G., for the use of a public burying-place." It has since been enlarged and incorporated as the "Starr Burial Ground." It is a beautiful, quiet spot; the well-kept grass and the sweet flowers show the pious care which guards the last resting place of the Starr family in Groton. One of the most memorable events in the history of Connecticut took place at Fort Griswold, in Groton, Sept. 6, 1781, when the fort, defended by 150 men, under command of Col. Ledyard, was taken by 800 British troops. After the surrender commenced a terrible inhuman massacre,—the Colonel was murdered with his own sword,—more than half his men were killed,—the ground was soaked with blood. At last a British officer cried out to stop the carnage, saying, "My soul cannot bear such destruction." Two of the Starrs were among the victims killed, several were wounded, and many suffered loss of property as the British burned the town. The State granted to the sufferers a large tract of land in Ohio, known as "The Fire Lands."

JOHN STARR, son of Thomas 22, Thomas 20, Samuel 19, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Jan. 16, bap. Mch. 6, 1743, at Groton, Ct. He went to Nova Scotia to settle, but on the opening of the war of the Revolution, espousing the cause of the colonists against the Crown of England, was compelled to flee from the Province without his family, and returned to his native place; his family afterward arrived. He immediately volunteered in the service of his country, and in the terrible fight at Fort Griswold was wounded by a musket ball through the left elbow, losing the use of his arm. The Government gave him a pension for life and 1,000 acres of land in Franklin Co., O., within and adjoining the present city of Columbus, to which he decided to emigrate; and in the spring of 1812, with his family, started for their future home in two large wagons; were seven weeks on the journey, arriving at their destination in June of that year. The site of the city was then a dense forest, with but a single log cabin upon it. His farm lay on the east side of the Sciota River, where a clearing was soon made, and two log cabins, of a single room each, were put up, one of which is still, or was until recently, standing. They endured all the trials and hardships incident to a frontier life, and the difficulties encountered by early settlers in a new country.

He was a member of the Congregational church in Groton, and of the Presbyterian church in Columbus. The committee appointed by the Connecticut Legislature to report on the condition of the sufferers at Fort Griswold, describe him "as a man of good character—took up arms for our liberties—obliged to leave Nova Scotia without his family—got them since—severely wounded," etc. Of him and his son, one who knew them adds: "They were quiet, honest Presbyterians, with no other ambition than to be good farmers, and to raise their children in their own religious faith and practice, which they certainly did." FIRE LANDS FAMILY, HURON CO., O.

These lands were granted by the State of Conn. to its inhabitants whose property had been destroyed by the enemy during the Revolutionary war. The following is from the "Fireland Pioneer," Nov., 1858:

"Thomas Starr, with his brother Perez, came in the year 1810, from Conn., in a one-horse wagon to Cleveland, O. Thomas came on to Eldredge (now Berlin), Erie Co, in Sept. of that year. There was but one settler in the eastern part of the township at that time. He got help from Florence, Huron, and Milan to raise his house. On the morning of Nov. 6, 1810, the day appointed for the raising, the snow was six inches deep, that had fallen during the night. Soon after sunrise old Mr. Burdue, a kind friend, made his appearance on horseback with four gallons of whiskey, which he had brought from Milan for the occasion. The hands soon came, the house was raised, and they had a good time of it in spite of the gloomy prospects of the morning. In that house the brothers kept bachelors' hall for some time."

CAPT. JONATHAN STARR, son of Samuel 19. Thomas 7. Dr. Comfort 1, b. Feb. 23, 1673-4, in New London, and, with his brother, settled on the eastern bank of the Thames river, now in the town of Groton. (See page 15.) He became an extensive landholder, and his name frequently appears on the records as a buyer and seller of lands. He was prominent in all public affairs; at the first town meeting, held in 1705, was elected constable; in 1712, '13, and '14, Deputy to the "General Court"; in 1711, '12, '13, and '16, member of the Governor's Council; in 1712 was called "Sarjeant"; in 1715 commissioned Ensign; in 1716, Lieut., and in 1727 resigned as Capt. in the militia. Nov. 5, 1799, he owned the covenant in the First church of N. L., and had his oldest son Samuel bap., and Sept. 21, 1701, Elizabeth, his dau.; Feb. 19, 1802-3, his wife was received to full communion. As this is the last record of the family in the N. L. church, it is probable they soon after removed their relation to the church in Groton, organized in 1705. Its early records disappeared in the terrible scenes of blood and fire through which the people were called to pass on the day of the Fort Griswold massacre; enough remains to show that he was active in the Groton church, and was one of the committee for many years. He left a large landed property, and his personal estate alone amounted to £822 08s. 9d., including a negro man called Simon at £200. A time-worn stone marks his grave in the Starr Burial Ground; d. Aug. 26, 1747. He m. Jan. 12, 1698-9, ELIZABETH, dau. of Capt. JAMES and MARY (Vine) MORGAN, of G. (Capt. M. came from Wales, Mary Vine from Eng.), b. Sept. 9, 1678. NORWICH FAMILY.

Norwich Town, settled in 1660, 13 miles north of New London, is a pleasant village on the banks of the Yantic river. Its ambitious child, "The City," left the rural quiet of the old homestead, and set up for herself at the landing on the Thames, two miles below. The First Cong. church, where our family worshiped, faces the village green, while in sight, a few rods distant, is their last resting place; stones, with usual inscriptions, mark the graves of all but the first generation. Samuel Starr of Groton, found his wife in Norwich; their marriage in 1726 is the first mention of the name on the town records. The family was never large, for but one son remained, while two went to Nova Scotia. Now they are all gone. Nova Scotia and the West alone perpetuate the name of the Norwich Starrs.

He built thereon a spacious house, that stood until since 1850. The records show frequent transactions of his purchase and sale of real estate. In 1730 he was received into the First church, by letter from the church in Groton; his wife was already a member by profession in 1728. In 1784, according to the custom of those days of seating the meeting-house, they were assigned the "first seats" near the pulpit, a position of honor and dignity. He d. July 9, 1786. He m. NOVA SCOTIA FAMILY.

The expulsion of the Acadian French from Nova Scotia left large tracts of the rich alluvial farming lands bordering on the Bay of Fundy, and estuaries, at the disposal of the Government, which were immediately laid out and offered for sale. Special inducements were held out to settlers from England and the old colonies. In eastern Connecticut, especially in Norwich, where public meetings were held in the town hall, a great number of persons became interested in the matter, and vessel-loads of emigrants from that vicinity sailed for Nova Scotia. The leader of the Norwich company was Samuel Starr, who, on his first visit to the province as the head of the deputation, was indefatigable in exploring the country, and selected the fertile and sheltered valley of the Cornwallis, a beautiful spot on the Basin of Minas, known wherever the English language is spoken as the home of Longfellow's "Evangeline."

In 1759 he, with his family and the others, left Norwich for their new home, and, on their arrival, he was appointed one of the "Lot Layers," to divide the lands according to the grant. The part which fell to his share was then known as the "Town Plot," since, as Starr's Point, Cornwallis township. A few years afterward his younger brother, David Starr, came from Connecticut at his request, and settled there, and from these brothers all the Starrs in Nova Scotia are descended.

MAJOR SAMUEL STARR, son of Samuel 56, Jonathan 55, Samuel 19, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Sept. 2, 1728, in Norwich, Conn., where he m. Nov. 19, 1749, ABIGAIL, dau. of CAPT. JOHN and SARAH (Abell) LEFFINGWELL, of N., b. Nov. 3, 1725; d. Feb. 2, 1768. He removed to Nova Scotia in 1759, and immediately begun improving the estate he had purchased at Starr's Point, Cornwallis township, and the following year—1760 (1761?)—built the homestead, which still stands in good repair, and is now occupied by his great-grandson, Joseph Starr. The house is a large, square, brick-nogged building of nine rooms, with an immense stack of chimney in the center. The massive front door—quite a curiosity in its way—is made of two thicknesses of inch plank, heavily studded with large-headed iron nails, with a huge hammer-headed carved brass knocker, to which the storms of a hundred winters have given the color of antique bronze. The house was built in a second growth of pines (the first growth having been cleared by the French Acadians). One of these trees near the house, cut down in 1850, measured 116 feet in length, and four feet five inches across the stump.

Starr's Point is a bold headland of red sandstone, about a mile long, perpendicular on its north side, and is situate between the Cornwallis and Canard rivers. On the east, or Cornwallis side, the cliff continues for some 700 yards, and falls rapidly off to the "Dyke," and then come the rich alluvial marshes, of a red sandy loam, in some places twenty feet deep.

The original estate, now divided into four farms, is still in the possession of his descendants, having been in the family 120 years. All its surroundings are rich with scenes of pastoral beauty. About three miles from the homestead stands the old church, its golden spindle and balls against the sky. Within its walls the fathers worshiped, and around them is a beautiful cemetery; but away down by the bay, in the shadow of the cliff, between the Cornwallis river and the dyked marsh, lies a long, low, sandy spit, known as "Burial-ground Point," the oldest cemetery in the county, where the first generations of the Starr family, "the rude forefathers of the hamlet, sleep." Few and simple are the monuments that cover them, "but the land is called after their name," and this quiet "God's acre," far removed from the noise, turmoil, and never-ending unquietness of the world, is bright the summer long with many colored wild flowers, where the lights and shadows play among the grand old trees; where the birds fill the perfumed air with song, and the rushing river murmurs its never-ending requiem in its varied cadence of storm and calm. Can any Old World mausoleum, of marble and precious stones, compare with the simple, natural beauty of this ancient burial-place of our fathers?

When the American Revolutionary War broke out, Samuel Starr, like most of the inhabitants of Nova Scotia, took sides with the King, and throughout the struggle continued a stern, uncompromising loyalist, using his great personal influence to prevent the spread of disloyalty; and, holding a commission from the Crown as major in the province militia, was very active in organizing and drilling the men of the district, and preparing them, if necessary, to fight for their sovereign and country.

Major Starr was always a friend to the poor, and very popular among the people. On one occasion a neighbor, whom he had induced to resist a charge of usurious interest,—a great evil then prevalent in that part of Nova Scotia,—when the matter was brought before the Supreme Court, the major personally appeared for the defendant, and won his case against the best legal talent. He was complimented by the judge, and carried through the village on the shoulders of the people.

It appears the daughters did not go with their parents at first to Nova Scotia, for in 1774 and 1779 they were living in Norwich, as heirs of Capt. John Lessingwell, and in 1784 Abigail was seated in the First church there, as was the ancient custom of assigning seats, according to age, wealth, and position. The major was buried Aug. 26, 1799; Church of England.

His wife died in Nova Scotia, and he m. (2d) May 22, 1768, ELIZABETH, dau. of BENJAMIN and ELIZABETH KINSMAN. She d. May 12, 1784. He m. (3d) May 28, 1785, Mrs. MIRIAM DIXON, dau. of THOMAS and SARAH INGERSON.

JOSEPH STARR, son of Samuel 70, Samuel 56, Jonathan 55, Samuel 19, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Sept. 29, 1757, at Norwich, Conn.; was about two years old when his parents removed to Nova Scotia; and just before the war of Revolution he was sent to his friends in Conn. to be educated. At the commencement of the struggle his father wrote him a short, stern letter, commanding him to return at once on pain of disinheritance; but getting home was not so easy, for a draft of men for the State contingent was ordered about that time, and his was one of the first names drawn. He refused to serve, was arrested, sent to New London jail, and locked up with the crew of a sloop from Yarmouth, N. S., which had been seized several months before on the embargo being proclaimed. A plan was quickly formed to escape. Starr had a knife containing a gimlet and saw blade; and with such pocket implements as they had among them, was only a question of time to work out of a wooden jail. When all was ready, on a dark, tempestuous night they escaped into the yard, which was surrounded with a high plank wall, and scaling that, made their way to the wharf where the dismantled sloop lay; and breaking into the warehouse on the wharf where the sails, etc., were stored, worked hard all night getting the sloop ready, so that at daylight they were sailing out of the harbor, and fortunately a fair wind soon put them beyond pursuit. Arriving at Yarmouth, young Starr found himself 150 miles from home, without friends, money, or clothes; but nothing daunted, he worked to supply his necessities, started on foot, much of the way through a trackless forest, and reached his home one evening in November, looking quite rough and seedy after his long journey, trials, and hardships. He was not recognized, and begged for supper and a night's lodging. His father sent him to the kitchen, where an old negro servant, who had been his nurse, sat in the chimney-corner, who soon jumped up, and rushing to the parlor, cried out, "It's Massie Joe! its Massie Joe! I know him, 'cause I see him laugh." After the declaration of peace, he visited Norwich, and m. June 7, 1786, his cousin, JOANNA, dau. of JONATHAN and SARAH (Leffingwell) STARR [59], b. July 13, 1758, d. Aug. 29, 1847; returned to Nova Scotia, and succeeded his father on the farm at the old homestead; built a "dyke" to shut out the water from the marshes, and soon after gave up the farm to his sons. After years of imbecility, caused by softening of the brain, he d. July 8, 1840; a member of the Church of Eng.; Lieut. in the militia.

five years worked at his trade of builder and contractor. He inherited in no small measure the pluck and energy of his father. He had the yellow fever three times,—the last time in 1821, when he was thirty miles back in the interior, erecting buildings for a sugar plantation, with no one with him but his crew of black slaves and the natives in his employ. Awaking to consciousness one morning, weak and helpless with the fever, he ordered his foreman, a big mulatto, to carry him to his canoe, put him on the mattress, under the awning, and take him down the river at once. The slaves in astonishment said, "Why massa, you'll neber lib to git to the ribber." His orders were obeyed. On arriving at Georgetown he was carried on his hammock to the office of a merchant who was loading a Nova Scotia brig in the harbor, and, securing a passage, arranged to have the cargo put on board with all possible despatch, and the vessel sailed with the first mate and one sailor down with the fever; the latter died; the mate was sick the whole voyage, while Mr. Starr improved so rapidly that he was soon able to perform part of their duties, and arrived at his old home quite recovered. He married and settled at Starr's Point; in 1843 bought part of the old homestead, worked the farm until 1860; then, giving it up to his two youngest sons, removed to the old house where he spent the first twenty years of his married life; d. [The probability of the correctness of the above family record of Nathaniel Starr is drawn from the following facts, viz.: That widow Abigail Starr m., after 1791, Lieut. Hezekiah Tracy (his 2d wife), of Franklin, where he d. June 23, 1817, æ. 82. His estate owed Eunice Starr $95.99. Nathaniel's sister, Eunice, was not living at that time, and there is no record of any other of that name. Now, as widow Abigail, Eunice, and Elizabeth Starr were all of Franklin—where Nathaniel Starr lived and died—and as the records show no other Starr family in the town, the dates corroborate the theory, and even the name—Nathaniel Starr—is perpetuated in Elizabeth's family, it seems reasonable to conclude that they are the widow and daughters of Nathaniel Starr.]

FRANKLIN JEFFERSON STARR, son of James 137, Nicholas 133, Vine 127, Jonathan 55, Samuel 19, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. April 11, 1806, in New Hartford, Conn.; was young when the family removed to O.; studied law and admitted to the bar at Columbus. In 1833 he went to McDonough, Henry Co., Ga., and opened a law office; the next year, with another gentleman, visited Texas, at the instance of many citizens of Ga., who contemplated emigrating to that then new country, and returned early in 1835, giving a most favorable report of the natural advantages and resources thereof. He m. and removed the same autumn to Texas; settled at San Felipe, on the Brazos river, just at the breaking out of the war between Mexico and Texas. His law partner was Col. Wm. Barrett Travis, who commanded the Texas force of 172 men that were all massacred in fort "Alamo," at San Antonio, when taken by Santa Anna in 1836. Mr. Starr was for a time in the Texas army, and when the enemy threatened the Brazos country removed his family to Nacogdoches, and after the Mexicans were driven back and Santa Anna captured, decided to remain at N., and commenced the practice of law.

In the summer of 1837 he commanded a company of mounted men, raised to pursue a body of Indians who were committing depredations on the frontier. The exposure of the campaign brought on a fever, of which he d. July 7, 1837.

HON. JAMES HARPER STARR, son of James 137, Nicholas 133, Vine 127, Jonathan 55, Samuel 19, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Dec. 18, 1809, in New Hartford, Conn.; was about six years old when his parents removed to Ohio; intended for a farmer, but, receiving an injury to the knee-joint, which would be lasting in its effects, studied medicine; graduated in 1832 at the Medical College in Worthington, O. (an institution of but few years' existence); went South and commenced the practice of his profession in Henry Co., Ga. In 1836 removed to Texas; arrived at Nacogdoches Jan., 1837, and was president of the Board of Land Commissioners in 1838. Under the Republic of Texas he was appointed in May, 1839, Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Lamar, which honorable position he resigned in Aug., 1840. In 1861 he was appointed receiver of the Confederate States Court under the sequestration laws of the C. S. Congress, and in the spring of 1864 assistant Postmaster-General for the Trans-Mississippi Department, performing the duties of P. M. G. in those then isolated States west of the Miss. river, which he held until the final surrender of the Confederacy in 1865. He was opposed to the secession of the Southern States, as a remedy against the encroachments of the North upon their constitutional rights, and was actively instrumental in carrying a majority of votes in his county (Nacogdoches) against secession in the election of delegates to the Convention. But finding that the majority of the northern States and people rejected all appeals to them for guarantees against further encroachments, and further violence to the Constitution, and that war was inevitable, he gave to the Confederate cause, in defence of his country, his home, and the principles of constitutional republican government, his best efforts in mind, body, and means. In May, 1870, he removed to Marshall, Texas, and established the now extensive "Banking and Real Estate" house of James H. Starr & Son.

RICHARD STARR, son of Jonathan 55, Samuel 19, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. May 14, 1718, in Groton, Conn.; was admitted to the Cong. church May 16, 1736. His name appears on the town and church records down to June 1, 1778, when "he deeds the one-half dwelling house where I now dwell, with all the land I own and improve"; and soon after went to Norwich, where he was living, July 12, 1783, when he gave the deed (recorded May 25, 1790) "for one acre of land for the use of a public burying place in Groton" (see description of "Starr Burial Ground" following Family 19). Tradition in the family says that he was wealthy, owning Norwich Landing, which he sold for Continental money; that becoming worthless on his hands, he was bankrupt and lost all his property. At all events, he left Conn., and settled among the hills of Berkshire Co., Mass., in the village of Hinsdale, where, greatly beloved and honored, he d. Feb. 25, 1805.

In "A History of Hinsdale," published in 1829, is the following: "In 1781 Richard Starr, a pious and Godly man, came into town from Groton, Ct., and was of great service to the religious interests of the people. As a testimony of respect and grateful remembrance, at the suggestion of the church a subscription was raised, by which a respectable monument is erected at his grave." "In 1795 the Rev. Theodore Hinsdale was instrumental, in connection with Dea. Starr, in gathering and organizing the Cong. church, which was formed in Dec. of that year," etc. He was moderator of the first meeting held Jan. 7, 1796, after the organization of the church, and Feb. 19, 1796, was unanimously chosen deacon, and was the only one down to 1802.

The name of this eminently pious man is held in fragrant remembrance by the old saints in Israel to the present day. An old lady in 1874 said, "He stopped in a snow storm in the fall of 1804 at her father's house. She remembered his religious conversation and his holy reputation." While Mrs. Mary Seabury, an Episcopalian, wife of his brother, Jonathan Starr of New London, left this tribute: "Brother Richard comes to see us once a year, and I always feel at his departure as if an angel had been visiting us."—Caulkins' History of New London.

He m. Jan. 15, 1740-1, PRISCILLA SMITH. She was admitted to the Cong. church in Groton May 16, 1736. Can find no further record; probably d. before her husband went to Hinsdale, as no stone or record there is found of her. The births of the children are from the town records, the baptisms from the church records of Groton. No trace has been found of the four eldest children; perhaps they died young. The family became scattered after the loss of his property.

MIDDLETOWN FAMILY.

Weld
165.

COMFORT STARR, son of Dr. Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, the founder of this Branch of the Starr family, was b. in 1644, in Scituate, Mass.; m. in Boston, MARAH,* dau. of JOSEPH and BARBARA WELD, who was bap. Aug. 2, 1646, at Roxbury; admitted to the First church in Boston 5 d., 1 mo., 1671, and two weeks after, on the 19th, her son Comfort, and on the 31 d., 10 mo., of the same year her dau. Mary were bap. They soon after went to New London, Ct., where his brother Samuel was living, intending to settle there, but did not long remain, as it appears, for "Mch., 1674-5. One perch of land was recorded to him and to his heirs forever in Middletown, county of Hartford in the Colony of Coniecticut." This original homestead of the family in Mid. was on the south corner of what is now High and Cross sts. and remained in the possession of his descendants until 1810. His name frequently appears on the records of the town; was elected to several local offices, and in 1679 was one of the 64 subscribers to purchase "a belle to be hanged up in the meeting house."

From the records of the First church in Middletown:

"29. 1. 1674, Hannah, dau. of Comfort Starr, received ye initiatory seal of ye covenant by virtue of the communion of churches, ye mother being a member in full communion of ye First church of Christ in Boston."

"25. 6. 1678, Mara Starr from ye First church of Xt. at Boston (recommended to ye church at New London w^h not settling Joined not) was received to full communion with this ch."

He d. Oct. 18, 1693, without a will. The inventory of his estate, containing the ages of his children at that time, is on the Probate records at Hartford.

*The apostle Eliot says: "The cause of the bitter name Marah is, that the father, Joseph Weld, is now in great affliction by a sore on his tongue." He died shortly after her birth, of a cancer.

GUILFORD, CONN., FAMILY.

COMFORT STARR, son of Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Nov. 15, 1666, in Boston; bap. 19 day, 1 mo., 1671, in First church as "son of sister Mary Starr." who was admitted to the church 5 day, 1 mo., 1671, just two weeks before. The family removed to Middletown, Ct. He learned the tailor's trade, and, probably soon after, went to Guilford, New Haven Co., Conn., bought a place on the west side of (now) State st., the south line being two rods north of (now) York st. The house (see frontispiece) to which he added a lean-to, now standing, in good repair, one of the oldest in the town, is a quaint old structure of large rooms, low ceiling, huge beams, big fireplaces, immense stone chimney, and in the garret can be seen the short, rived, oak clapboards of those early days. In the front yard are two fine black walnut trees.

The nuts from which they grew were picked up by Hannah Starr [194 D] under the tree now standing in front of the residence of the late H. W. Chittenden, Esq., on the Green, and were by her planted on the day that the news of the treaty of peace, after the war of 1812, was received in Guilford, and while the bell was ringing in honor of that event. The south chamber was his tailor's shop. That he was industrious is evident, for the floor is worn through by his feet as he stood at the cutting-board. The homestead remained in the possession of the family until 1874, a period of 180 years, when, on the decease of his great granddaughter, a maiden of 83, it passed into other hands. The following is a copy of the quaint deed of purchase, under which the family held the property, "without let or hindrance": "To all christian people, To whom these presents shall come. Know ye that John Collins senr of gilford in Co of Newhaven & Collony of Connecticut in new england, cordwainer send greeting, now know yoo that the sd John Collins for divers good causes & considerations him thereunto mouving but more especially for & in consideration of the full & just sum of forty pounds currant mony of Newengland already in hand Resevd of Comfort Starr of gilford aforsd Tayler in full satisfaction for which the sd John Collins hath & by these presents doth giue, grant bargoun, sell, alien, infeoff confirm & make over & by these presents, doth giue, grant, bargon, sell, alion infeoff, confirm, & make over fully, frely and absolutely unto the above sd Comfort Starr, his heysr, asighns, & administrators forever, all that his home lot of Land, situate, Lying, & being in crooked lane in gilford, aforsd, together wth all buildings fenses & apurtenances upon sd land contayning by estimation three acres beit more or Less as it there Lyeth, bounded easterly by a lane called crooked Lane, northerly partly by the land of William Stone & partly by the land of John gutrig, westerly by the Land of Ephraim Dorrum & southerly part by the land of Thomas Cook & part by the land of Nathaniell Chitenden, deceased, this to have and to hold all the fore-mentioned piесе, or parsell of Land hereby granted, bargoned, & sold unto the sd Comfort Starr his heysr & assignns & administrators from hence-forth and forever together with all & singular Rights, prondleges, advantages benefits & apurtenanse what-soever there-unto belonging or in any wayes appertaining wth out any manner of Let, sute, hindrance, molestation, disturbance, deniall, challing, claime, or

John Collins.

The name of Comfort Starr frequently appears on the records of Guilford as a prominent man in the town,—in 1699 surveyor, for 7 years lister, 4 years constable, 2 grand juror, some time collector of the minister's and town rate; 1699 signed a petition for laying out Durham town; 1716 on a committee to drain the meadows; in 1723 to sell undivided lands, etc.; 1716 his tax-list was £102 2 6*d*—his trade was put in at £5. His business, however, must have been profitable, for he became a large landholder, and left a handsome property. An ornamented chest with the inlaid initials of himself and wife—C^S E—is in the possession of the compiler of this work. His will, dated July 30, 1741, says, “being sick and weak in body”; d. May 1, 1743; was laid in the ancient burial place on the Green, between the foundation of the soldiers' monument and the west fence. The sacred spot cannot be identified, for some 50 years ago the sacrilegious hand of improvement, so-called, was laid upon this “God's Acre,” the stones were removed, the graves leveled; but their descendants can never forget, as they walk over the smooth turf of the beautiful Guilford Green, that beneath their feet their ancestors, “the rude forefathers of the hamlet, sleep.”

WILLIAM STARR, son of Jehosaphat 175, Comfort 169, Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. June 9, 1740, at the old homestead, Guilford; May 24, 1794, he bought the house a few rods north, now occupied by his grandson, pleasantly situated on the north corner of State and North sts., G. Its former occupant, Capt. Lee, was an officer during the Revolution to guard the coast against the contraband trade with the British on Long Island. Having seized a boat-load of goods, stored them in his west bedroom; one night the smugglers attempted to break in and recover them; the Capt. fired at the intruders; the ball lodged in one of the timbers in the kitchen, was visible long after the house came in possession of the Starrs, and only disappeared when alterations were made.

Squire Starr, as he was always called, was a farmer; highly respected, honored, and prominent in all town matters, as selectman, treasurer, grand juror, lister, surveyor, on several important committees, and in the war of the Revolution exerted a wide influence as a patriot, and active in all matters pertaining to the soldiers. He was lame from rheumatism, and is still remembered as an exceedingly affable, intelligent, and entertaining old gentleman; d. Nov. 30, 1816.

The furniture of the bride was carried to her new home on an ox-cart, called the "Bride's Cart"; the wine, etc., left from the wedding feast were placed upon it, and as it passed along on its way, friends came out with their glasses, which were filled and drank to the health and prosperity of the happy couple.

DEA. COMFORT STARR, son of William 177, Jehosaphat 175, Comfort 169, Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Feb. 7, 1780, in the old Starr house; inherited the homestead of his father (the Lee House), on the north corner of North and State sts., where he had lived from boyhood. He was a successful farmer, a man of clear head, sound judgment, strong character, a good heart, of the strictest integrity, and of decided opinions, intelligently formed by careful reading upon all the theological and political questions of the times, and ever ready and able when called upon to give the reason of the faith that was in him. The leisure winter days of long ago are well remembered, when the more thoughtful of his Christian brethren, neighbors, and others called and spent hours in pleasant discussion of the favorite themes of Taylorism and Tylerism, Gen. Jackson's administration, U. S. Bank, etc.,—always holding his own positive convictions, yet most liberal and kind toward all who differed from him, cheerfully according to them what he claimed for himself. He was a peacemaker, ready to yield every thing but the right for the sake of peace, and often called upon to advise and settle disputes and disagreements in families or among neighbors. He had no enemies,—was honored and respected by the entire community. His townsmen elected him selectman for six years, and to nearly every other office in their gift. He, with his wife, united with the Cong. church in 1821; was elected deacon Aug. 30, 1827, and by a devoted Christian life and example adorned his office and profession. He d. suddenly Dec. 1, 1862, in Hartford, while on a Thanksgiving visit at his son's; was borne to his old home, funeral services in the church he loved, and he was laid to rest among his kindred in the East Cemetery.

“Why weep ye then for him who, having won
The bound of man's appointed years, at last,— Life's blessings all enjoyed, life's labors done,—
Serenely to his final rest has passed;
While the soft memory of his virtues yet
Lingers like twilight hues when the bright sun is set?”

Sem., 1874; June 18 of that year ordained to the gospel ministry in his native town, and immediately began his work at West Stewartstown, N. H. It was soon finished, for he died June 22, 1875, of pneumonia, at the close of his first year in the ministry, and near the time of his intended marriage. In one of his Seminary vacations he preached at Sleepy Eye, Minn., and Rev. E. H. Alden, who introduced him there, wrote: "He was a very earnest and unremitting laborer for Christ in that field. Under his ministry the congregation constantly increased, the religious interest deepened, especially among the young, and his influence for good will never cease. In addition to his other labors, he organized a Sunday-school at Golden Gate, where he often preached in connection with the S. S. service;—there, also, his memory is very precious." Of his work in West Stewartstown, Rev. H. W. Pope wrote: "The same might also and even more truly be said of his last year's work in West Stewartstown, where he left a community to mourn him as one man; a church that had grown under his ministry, to miss his labors, and many hearts which he had moved to a holier life, to a sorrow no less real because silver-lined with precious memories and glorious hopes."—*Cong. In 1847 he and Ralph Burkett, a brother clerk, under the firm of Starr & Burkett, established a new store on the corner of Main and Temple sts., which they named "Bee Hive," and from a small beginning grew to be one of the largest and most popular mercantile establishments in the city. Too close application to business broke down the health of both partners. At the age of 20, with the assistance of that eminent genealogist, and his once school-teacher, the late Ralph D. Smith, Esq., of Guilford, he worked out his own pedigree to Dr. Comfort Starr, a copy of which hung for several years in the gallery of the Conn. They worshiped in the First church in Mid., and were buried at the Farm Hill Cemetery, in their own neighborhood. The fine farms they cultivated, some of the houses they built, and the graves where the fathers sleep are still there; but the name of Starr is borne only by two maiden ladies, with whom it becomes extinct in the South Farms district.

Jan. 2, 1729–30, at South Farms; followed the sea from a boy, but must have remained on shore from 1753 to 1762, for during that time he was elected to several responsible offices in Middletown which would have required his presence. He was in an expedition sent out by the Colonies to Havana. A journal which he kept from the very beginning of the expedition, now in the possession of his great-grandson, Caleb A. Starr, shows good scholarship, a thorough knowledge of the affair in hand, and a prompt courage. He sailed for the West Indies with a cargo of horses, and his brief history closes with the following entry on the town records: "William Starr went from hence to sea the 4th day of August, 1763, and had a heavy storm, and never heard of since."

DEERFIELD, MASS., FAMILY.

WILLIAM STARR, son of William 235, Daniel 222, Joseph 197, Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Jan. 31, 1757, at Middletown, Conn., where he m. Dec. 27, 1781, ELIZABETH, dau. of SAMUEL and CHLOE (Cruttenden) STARR [269], b. Jan. 9, 1761, at M.; d. July 29, 1829.

About 1793 they removed to Greenfield, Mass., where her sister Mrs. Lucas was living, and he had the charge of the flouring mill of the town; in 1804 removed to Deerfield, and was superintendent of the extensive "Stebbins Mills;" a man of unflinching honesty, with the most tender-hearted compassion for the poor and suffering; when remonstrated with by his wife for giving so much to the needy, replied, "Lizzie, those children must not go hungry." He d. Jan. 23, 1831, of consumption; "a soldier of the Revolution of 1776;" Baptist.

The following tribute to his memory is from a pamphlet, written Feb. 28, 1871, by his granddaughter Eliza A. Starr, addressed to the Pocotuck Valley Memorial Association, asking that a wreath of laurel may be laid on his grave on Decoration day, which has since been sacredly performed every year:

"The placid picture of this aged man lives in my mind too vividly for time to weaken its beautiful traits, or to rob it of one touch of pathetic tranquility. From the Bible which lay on his knees for a great part of every day I learned my letters; and this very Bible, yellow with age, and bearing some marks of the childish handling it has received, has an honored place on my writing desk. No volume, however costly, is ever allowed to displace it, and I love to remember the mild eye which so faithfully pored over its pages, and the gentle finger which pointed out in it my first letters." "My grandfather entered the army in defence of his country in his sixteenth year, and served four years, or until the disbanding of the American army after peace had been declared. . . . We all know the sort of 'bounties' paid to the soldiers of the Revolution of '76, and what pay and what rations they drew. When he came from the service, in his twentieth year, he returned to his father without hat, coat, or shoes. His young feet had left tracks in blood on the snow of Valley Forge during the terrible winter of '78, when even the courage of Washington was probed to the quick, while he had fought in the ranks on the plains of Monmouth, on that awful 28th of July, 1778, when, as historians tell us, more soldiers, on both sides, died of thirst and from heat than from cannon or musket balls,—lying under the pitiless sun with black and swollen tongues protruding from mouths parched with the intolerable death-thirst. Through such heat, and through such cold, the young soldier had gone with unflinching fortitude and uncomplaining patience; and I am sure he never grudged one of these sufferings for his country, nor did he ask any other recognition of his service than the privilege of living peacefully under the government he had helped to establish."

Y., and spent 22 years on a farm, which he brought to a high state of cultivation. He was a scientific and intellectual man, a leader in the educational interests of the town, an almost constant and always active trustee in the schools, and exerted a great influence upon the moral training of the young; a man of pure, unswerving principles, highly esteemed, and possessing the confidence of all who knew him; a Methodist, contributing liberally to the building of churches, support of the gospel, and all worthy objects of benevolence. In 1844 he removed on to the "Douglass farm," in the same town. OLIVER STARR, son of William 245, William 235, Daniel 222, Joseph 197, Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. April 2, 1791, in Middletown, Conn.; was two years old when the family removed to Mass.; assisted his father in the mill, and, with a natural eye for colors, and enough of scientific taste to enjoy chemicals, he studied with great enthusiasm into the mystery of dyes, and became master of the art, which he carried on for some time. The "Meadow Homestead" in Deerfield was the place of patriarchal hospitality, where the poor, the hungry, and the wandering were fed and refreshed. In the winter of 1854-5 he decided to emigrate; the homestead was sold, and April 2, 1855, on his 64th birthday, the old home was broken up, and soon after a new farm was bought, a new home made in Laona, Winnebago Co., Ill. A gentler spirit never found its place in man. His benignity was a halo of beauty in his age, and never more beautiful than when standing by the open grave of his wife, his thin locks bared under a Feb. sky, he thanked his friends and neighbors for the respectful kindness to him and to his dead, closing with the words—"He that believeth in Me shall never die." He d. April 26, 1870.

He m. May 30, 1821, LOVINA, dau. of CALEB and JUDITH (Hawks) ALLEN, of D., b. Oct. 9, 1786; d. Feb. 15, 1864. She was granddaughter of Samuel Allen, who, on the 25th of Aug., 1746, fell under the fire of the Indians, while defending his young family from their assaults. The story of this tragedy, in which a father and uncle were killed, a daughter tomahawked, and a young son carried into captivity, is preserved in history, as well as in the traditions of the family.

CHILDREN.

249 CALEB ALLEN, b. March 3, 1822.

A ELIZA ANN ("ALLEN,") b. Aug. 29, 1824, in Deerfield, Mass.; and educated at its famous old academy. In 1846, having shown a decided talent for drawing and literature, she went to Boston and studied for two years, under the direction of the well-known artist, Mrs. Caroline, wife of Richard Hildreth, the historian; then to Brooklyn, N. Y., as drawing teacher in a large boarding-school; thence teaching drawing and French in Phila., where she made the acquaintance of the Roman Catholic Archbishop Kenrick, whose influence affected her whole religious thought and subsequent life. In 1851 she accepted the situation of teacher in the family of a wealthy planter in Natchez, and remained there two years. During all this time her pen was not idle—she was a constant contributor, both in prose and verse, to a number of magazines and papers, frequently illustrating them herself; afterward spent some time in Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Boston, where she opened a studio; but the climate proving unfavorable to her health, established herself in Chicago in 1856, where she might almost be called the Pioneer of Art. Her studio was crowded early and late with pupils, and her time happily divided between the pencil and the pen. In 1866, urged by her friends, she collected and published the poems written in previous years. In 1871 she published "Patron Saints," a book devoted to the interests of Roman Catholic youth. The twelve illustrations it contained, after celebrated religious pictures, were drawn on wood by herself. She has since etched twelve similar ones on steel plates, for a second volume under the same title, for which the material is nearly prepared. In 1871 the great Chicago fire destroyed "St. Joseph's Cottage," as her beautiful home was called, where she had lived for eight years, and was filled with the treasures of a lifetime, and she was again a wanderer. One year afterward she accepted an invitation to make St. Mary's Academy, near South Bend, Ind., her home until her own was rebuilt. While with the Sisters of the Holy Cross, who have there their mother house, she assisted them to form an art department after the best models of Europe and America. In 1875, accompanied by her nephew, William W. Starr, the sculptor, she visited Europe, spending months in Rome, and other cities in Italy, studying more especially their Christian monuments. All must regret that severe illness, on her return through England, prevented the carrying out of a cherished plan to make a pilgrimage to the home of our ancestor, Dr. Comfort Starr, at Ashford, and sketching with her pencil some object in the ancient town, not only as a sacred memento for herself, but to appear in these pages for the interest and pleasure of the whole family. She returned to Chicago, and in 1877 rebuilt "St. Joseph's Cottage," where, in her studio, from the rich harvest of manuscript and sketches she had garnered in her foreign tour, gave a course of lectures during the winters of 1877, '78, and '79, to ladies, upon the "Literature of Christian Art"; beginning with the Catacombs, has come down to Raphael and Michael Angelo. The numerous cultivated company who weekly gathered there, testify to the pride we may well feel in our gifted kinswoman, and in her continued enthusiastic devotion to artistic and literary pursuits, anticipate even a more brilliant future in store for her.

and for five years followed the sea, but left it on the death of his younger brother, and lived in his native town until 1855; then with his father emigrated to Ill., bought a farm at Laona, Winnebago Co.; an advocate of the "Grange," a self-protecting guild for the interest of the whole agricultural community; earnest for a farmer's term in the graded schools, and active in starting a Farmers' Life Ins. Association; in 1877, sold his farm and went into the drug business in Durand, in the same Co.

SAMUEL STARR, son of Joseph 197, Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Jan. 6, 1703-4, in Middletown, Ct.; in 1734 was collector; in 1746 grand juror, and in 1750 selectman of the town. Jan. 28, 1728, was admitted to full communion in the First church, and there his children were afterward baptized. He d. July 27, 1778; buried in the old cemetery by the river.

He m. (1st) Aug. 20, 1724, ELIZABETH DE JERSEY. She d. Aug. 26, 1768, æ. 65. Tradition says that she and her sister were the only children of a French nobleman, proprietor of a large estate in Jersey, one of the Channel Islands, near the shore of France. They were left orphans at an early age, and placed under the care of an uncle, to whom the estate would revert in case of their decease. He, under the pretense of sending them to England to be educated, put them on board of a ship bound for America. On arriving at New York the captain sold them for their passage-money. They were brought to Middletown and given the surname of their native island. The elder was about 10 years old at this time;—the sister married a Redfield. After many years, the uncle on his death-bed confessed his great wrong, caused letters to be written to his nieces, begging them to return and claim their rightful estate. They were too old themselves to respond, and their children did nothing about it. This romantic tradition is preserved among all the descendants of said Elizabeth De Jersey now scattered over the country. In one family in Ohio they have it in writing, taken down from the lips of a granddau. of said Elizabeth. In another family a grandson, b. in 1779, d. in 1852, often said that when a boy, living in Mid., he saw in the garret of the old Starr house those very letters from the uncle, that he read them himself, and that they contained the above story.

Calling the family, she said we must hurry up the breakfast, for her son Edmund, who lived 30 miles away, was very sick; that a man, who had driven all night, was coming for her, and she must be ready to go with him without delay, if she would see her son alive. About an hour after, such a messenger arrived, confirming the story of her son's sickness in every particular, of which never a word had been known before. 284.

REV. WILLIAM HENRY STARR, son of James Fosdick 280, b. April 27, 1817, in Middletown, Conn.; graduated at Illinois College in 1843, with high rank as a scholar. After teaching one year in Burlington, Iowa, he was tutor in the college for two years, studying theology at the same time; and the next year attended theological lectures at New Haven. He preached in Peoria, Ill., one year from Oct., 1847, being ordained at Jacksonville, July. 16, 1848, and in Griggsville, Ill., from 1848 to 1851; installed April 14, 1852, as pastor of the Congregational church in Elgin, Ill., where he remained till his death, of small-pox, March 6, 1854.

These facts of his personal history are drawn from the Memoir prefixed to a volume of his "Discourses on the Nature of Faith, and Kindred Subjects," published in 1857. From this volume it appears that he was heartily devoted to his work, a man of studious habits and independent thought, earnestly examining the foundations of religious faith, and not always satisfied with prevalent theologic methods, "while his entire theology brought him to the same practical results in which all Christians are agreed." His views on Christian union, and his own personal experiences, led him to prepare a series of sermons on the "Evils of Sectarianism," which are included in the above mentioned volume.

He m. March 26, 1850, LUCY ELIZABETH, dau. of Capt. JAMES A. and JANE S. COLLINS, of Griggsville, Ill., b. July 27, 1828, in Boston, Mass.; a woman of unusual force and excellence of character. During the civil war, under the direction of the Western Sanitary Commission, she held a responsible position in a hospital in St. Louis, and was for two years matron of the Soldiers' Home at Memphis, Tenn. After the close of the war, she was called to various posts of usefulness, and in 1870 was sent by the Woman's Union Missionary Society of New York to take charge of their Mission Home, in Peking, China. THOMAS NESBIT STARR, son of Henry 289, b. Feb. 3, 1812, in Philadelphia. Having learned the printers' trade, he worked at the business first in Balt.; one winter in New Orleans; printed the "Philanthropist" in Lowell, Mass.; two years on the University press at Cambridge; for 18 months had charge of the "Advocate" at Brunswick, Ga.; worked on the State printing at Richmond, Va., during the winter of 1840. He then went to New York and learned the daguerreian art of Prof. Morse, and opened the first gallery on Broadway, but, like the wandering Jew, there was no rest for him, and he went to Richmond, Va., and for seven years had charge of a clothing house there; in 1847 went to Mexico; returned to N. Y., and was in the clothing business at Albany, when the gold fever broke out, and he started on the first trip of the Crescent City for Cal.; left the steamer at Panama; joined a party of fifteen that bought a schooner, and sailed up the Pacific coast; arrived at San Diego in 108 days, and started on a six-weeks' journey to the mines; was very soon tired of handling the pick and shovel, with the mercury at 120° in the shade. July 3, 1849, found him in San Francisco, where he opened a hotel, and after months of success in that line, went to New York, married, returned to Cal., ending his wanderings by settling down to the quiet of domestic life in San Francisco, and for 17 years carried on the ship-bread and cracker business. In 1872 he removed to St. Helena, his present residence, in the Napa valley, and engaged in the raising of grapes.

He has since made London his home, and been engaged in various business enterprises; since 1849 in the shipping, express, and commission business, at 22 Moorgate st.; Presbyterian.

The following interesting letter shows his unabated love for his native land, and the valuable service thus rendered was most highly appreciated by the citizens of the town:

"LONDON, Sept. 15, 1873.

H. M. CURTISS, Esq., Newcastle, N. H.,—

Dear Sir: I take the liberty of addressing you in reference to a matter of considerable interest, as it seems to me, to yourself and fellow-townsmen of Newcastle. A neighbor of mine in Hertfordshire has in his possession the original town records (manuscript) of Newcastle from the year 1693 to 1724 inclusive, in which are included meetings of the town, . . . and a host of other curious and interesting proceedings and events during that period.

It was probably abstracted by a British soldier during the war of the Revolution, and has ever since been held in this country. . . . As an American I should be glad to see the work restored to its proper depository, where I doubt not it would be welcomed not only for its intrinsic value (whatever that may be), but for its mysterious absence and return after the lapse of nearly a hundred years. I confess that, as a descendant of New England, these old, time-worn pages have a peculiar charm for me, and seem to place me in direct and intimate communication with the actors of two centuries ago, as I read their simple history, recorded in their own handwriting.

Meanwhile I remain, dear sir, yours very truly,

HENRY STARR."

A DAUGHTER.

A LOUISA, b. Nov. 26, 1845; is an artist of distinguished ability, even in that critical art society, having taken the first prize—"A GOLD MEDAL"—at the exhibition of the Royal Academy of London in 1868, for a painting entitled "Hardly Earned." The London Times, in its notice of the exhibition, says: "Meanwhile it must suffice to remark that the young gold-medalist has done most valiant work—work that will shed additional lustre on a name already long and honorably known in the art world." The correspondent of the Chicago Tribune writes from London, Jan. 6, 1868:

"AN EVENING WITH THE ART PEOPLE OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

"The other evening we attended a meeting of the Royal Academy. It was the biennial distribution of prizes to the students, and gave us not only an opportunity of seeing their artistic genius, but of meeting the Royal Academicians. . . . After a short speech, the President opened the paper presented him by the Secretary, and read a few words that were received with breathless attention. They were simply that a gold medal, the first prize, had been awarded to Miss Louisa Starr; but they seemed to electrify every one, if I except the imperturbable academicians, who were no doubt prepared for the shock. The daughter of the President, who sat next me, could hardly restrain her expressions of delight. Her brother applauded, and was seconded by a chorus of claps from the students behind that was almost deafening. Everybody was interested. Every head was turned toward a seat near the middle aisle, from whence a young, delicate girl was seen with difficulty making her way. As she hurried down towards the speaker's desk, and tremblingly mounted the two or three steps leading up it, she looked so white—so agitated—so like a lily swaying in the breeze—that one felt a vague fear that she would faint, or cry, or do something else supposed to be peculiarly womanish; but she did not, although, like every one else, she was more or less moved by so unexpected, so unusual, yet so well-deserved an honor. I don't know what it could have been. It was not a moment when one's own, or another's emotions could be analyzed; but there was something about it all that deeply touched one. Undoubtedly the girl's beauty had something to do with the impression created, for it was that of delicacy, refinement, and simplicity, as well as of form and color; and as she stood there on that pedestal, waiting for the President to finish his short complimentary oration and give her the medal, her face might have realized some sculptor's dream of grace. Then, too—though there are in England, as in America, a few of your noble sex sufficiently enlightened to believe that genius has no sex—it is very uncommon to bestow any distinction upon a woman.

“Undoubtedly there are, even now, many envious ones among the ‘star’s’ brother students who complain bitterly of the injustice of awarding the prize to a girl! Perhaps they say, too, like Corinne’s masculine detractors, that her pretty face influenced the voters. All these things, combined with the belief in all unprejudiced minds of the entire justice of the choice, produced a feeling of universal interest and animation.”

The London Illustrated News of July 17, 1875, and Harpers’ Weekly of Aug. 7, 1875, contained a copy of this prize painting, “Hardly Earned.”

hope at the storming and capture of El Molino del Rey; took part in the capture of the castle of Chepultepec, and of the city of Mexico, and continued in Mexico till the conclusion of peace, in 1848. He was appointed Brevet 2d Lieut. 2d Dragoons, U. S. Army, June 28, 1848, in acknowledgment of his services in the Mexican war; served in Texas from 1848 to 1854, and in Kansas against the proslavery insurrection, in 1855; in the Sioux Indian and Utah expeditions, 1855-6, and in the western territories till 1861. Having risen by successive promotions, he became Captain 2d U. S. Dragoons, June 14, 1858.

In the War of the Rebellion he was assigned to the staff of Brig.-Gen. J. K. F. Mansfield as aid-de-camp; in May, 1861, appointed Provost Marshal of the City of Washington, D. C.; and subsequently ordered on mustering duty to St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Philadelphia, Pa. In August, 1861, he was appointed by Gov. Olden Colonel of the 5th Reg't N. J. Vols., and in Sept. received leave of absence from the War Department to accept this command. In Dec., 1861, four N. J. regiments were ordered to report to Gen. Hooker near Budd's Ferry, Md., were formed into a brigade, as part of the "Army of the Potomac," and Col. Starr, the senior officer, was appointed to its command, and engaged in the battles of Fair Oaks, May 31, and Seven Pines, June 1, and while in command of his regiment, at Williamsburg, Va., May 4, 1862, (where his regiment lost heavily and himself wounded,) at White Oak Swamp, Chickahominy, Seven Days' battles, and at Malvern Hill. On the retreat of the Army of the Potomac to Harrison's Landing, Va., he resigned his commission in the volunteers Oct. 20, 1862, having in the meantime been appointed Brevet Major U. S. Army, "for gallant and meritorious conduct at the battle of Williamsburg, Va." Gen. Hooker's report of this campaign says of Col. Starr, while in command of the brigade, "His energy and courage were conspicuous in every part of the field." He was promoted Major 6th U. S. Cavalry Apl. 25, 1863; the command of the regular brigade devolved on him June 13, and in the action at Upperville, Va., June 21, he was wounded in the side, in a charge on the rebel cavalry. During Lee's march for the invasion of Maryland and Penn., Col. Starr hung on the flank of the rebel army with his cavalry, skirmishing frequently with the enemy until it crossed the Potomac into Maryland, and on the 3d of July, at Fairfield, Pa., with the 6th U. S. Cavalry, reduced by casualties to less than 300 men, he engaged two brigades of the enemy's cavalry, checked their advance, and after a severe affair, in which the regiment lost heavily, frustrated the object of the enemy of a flank attack upon a Union brigade. Col. Starr was severely wounded in this action, receiving a saber stroke on the head, and a pistol ball through the right arm, which shattered the bone and rendered amputation necessary. This was performed four inches below the shoulder-joint July 4, 1863. He was taken prisoner after the action, while lying wounded in the house of a Union lady in Fairfield, but immediately released. For "gallant and meritorious services" at Upperville, and in the Gettysburg campaign, he was successively brevetted Lieut.-Col. and Col., U. S. Army. On recovering so as to return to duty, he was Chief Mustering and Disbursing Officer for the State of Ohio from Oct., 1863, to Sept., 1864, when he was ordered to join Sheridan's army in the Shenandoah Valley, Va.; commanding Remount Camp, Pleasant Valley, Md., in Nov., 1864; and Special Inspector of Cavalry for the Armies of the Potomac and James from Nov., 1864, to Aug., 1865. In Oct., 1865, he was ordered with his regiment to Texas, and appointed to the command of the post at Tyler, Smith Co. A local paper said, "For the benefit of those who may feel disposed to still hang out against a just and peaceful restoration of affairs in that Co., that they had just as well care, for there is neither foolishness nor child's play with Col. Starr. He is one of your matter-of-fact sort of men, and has but one way of doing things—that way is to do what he believes to be right, fearlessly, and regardless of consequences." Dec. 15, 1870, he was retired from active service "on account of long and faithful service, and wounds received in action, with full rank of Colonel, U. S. Army."

CAPT. DAVID STARR, son of Thomas 319, Joseph 197, Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Mch. 21, 1738-9, in Salisbury, Ct., bap. Dec. 21, 1746, in the First church at Middletown, where he was brought up. Oct. 7, 1755, his uncle Nathaniel Griswold, of Wethersfield, was appointed his guardian.

He m. (1st) Mch. 29, 1759, RUTH, dau. of Dr. ABIJAH and ANNA (Ward) MOORE, of M., b. Jan. 1, 1742, d. July 30, 1786.

He m. (2d) HANNAH, dau. of NATHANIEL and REBECCA GOODWIN, of M., b. July 12, 1749, d. Oct. 3, 1818.

Oct. 12, 1774, he deeds all his right in certain property of my honored father's in Salisbury and New Milford. He was for five years surveyor of highways in Mid., and filled other town offices; a member of the First church, and brought up his children in the same faith. He early joined the patriot army in the war for Independence, and was made captain. His townsmen did not neglect his family during his absence, for Dec. 7, 1778, also in 1779 and 1781, "John Ward was especially appointed by the town to provide for the family of Capt. David Starr, a soldier at the war."

About 1790 he left M. with his family, emigrated to Steuben, Oneida Co., N. Y., on a farm that still bears the name of "Starr's Hill," about half a mile from the monument erected in 1871 to Baron Steuben. The following is from the annals of Oneida Co.: "Starr's Hill, the most elevated point of the Steuben range, is the highest land in the county. The view is very beautiful and extensive, taking in part of the Oneida Lake, and portions of seven counties are distinctly seen. It received its name from Capt. David Starr, one of the earliest settlers in the town, who chose for his home this elevated ground. Capt. Starr held a commission in the Continental army, and served seven years. He had but a durable lease of his farm, and was not as successful with his farm as with his sword. After the death of Baron Steuben, his executor, Col. Walker, pressed the Capt. for the rent, and a suit was instituted for its collection, when the Capt. became so irritated to think that one of his old companions in arms should distress him for that which he had not the means of paying, that he gave the Col. a verbal challenge to meet him at the grave of the Baron, with sword and pistol, and there settle the matter. The suit, however, proceeded no further, and the Capt. had more lenity shown him. A portion of this elevated locality is now devoted as a place of sepulture for the dead."

About 1809 he gave up the farm, removed to Lee Centre, Oneida Co., and d. Aug. 11, 1813, while on a visit in Adams, Jeff. Co., and there buried.

At her death she left her homestead to Christ Epis. church for a rectory, on condition of change of name to "Holy Trinity," and the rest of her property mostly to the Miss. Society of the Prot. E. church. The following lines were found in her portfolio after her decease, May 7, 1848:

Close by the graves, where my loved parents rest,
Let my cold limbs by some kind hand be placed!
If, when my eyes are by Death's signet sealed,
Some hand of friendship will that kindness yield,
Peace to that friend who with my wish complies,
And peace attend his manes whene'er he dies!

NEW LONDON FAMILY.

BENJAMIN STARR, son of Comfort 165, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. Apl. 15, 1679, in Middletown; and on the records of the First church is written: "Apl. 20, 1679, Benjamin, son of Mary Starr, received y^e initiatory seal of the covenant."* It is altogether

*Miss Caulkins, usually authority in all New London matters, in her history calls this Benjamin son of Samuel of New London. In this she is evidently in error, for the names, birth, and baptism of Samuel's children are recorded on the N. L. records, but there is no Benjamin among them, and his name does not appear there until his marriage at the age of 23, while the birth and baptism of Benj. Starr is recorded in Mid., and the age on his gravestone in N. L. corresponds therewith. Samuel Starr of N. L., was his uncle, and it appears quite reasonable that he should have visited his cousins, found a wife, and settled there.

probable that he followed the sea in his youth, and this would have brought him to New London, which was the chief port and the best harbor on the coast. His two cousins were also living near in Groton. At all events he married there, and bought, in 1702, a house, garden, and wharf on the east side of "Bream Cove"; the water at full tide came up to the base of the house. It stood on the lower end of what is now Coit st., but the quantity of made land in the vicinity by the filling in of the cove, and the entire change of the shore line, have made it now quite a distance from the water. It remained in the family until his death, when it was appraised at £2,100, and sold in 1759 to Jonathan Starr [117] of N. L., whose father was cousin to Benjamin. It is recorded, "Oct. 20, 1719, a man was drowned near Benj. Starr's house, a few rods distant"; "Oct. 30, 1723, a sloop came up on the top of the point by Benj. Starr's house"; and "Nov. 10, 1724, a vessel drove on shore by Benj. Starr's barn." Whether he was himself a sailor, it is certain that he was engaged in the West India trade, for in 1715 there is a record of "taking his goods from the vessel and putting them in his cellar"; also "of dividing our cargo of rum, etc."; and in "1723, a brigantine from New London was lost near Sandy Hook on her homeward voyage from Barbadoes, owned by Benj. Starr and others." He was also largely interested in real estate, and in 1733 and 1734 he bought of the heirs of his late grandmother Rachel, all their right in a certain grant of 400 acres of land in Worcester Co., Mass., made to her by the General Court of Mass., on account of services rendered by her husband, Dr. Thos. Starr [7], as "chirurgion" in the Pequot War.

He was a prominent and enterprising citizen of New London; elected constable in 1712, a member of the "Governor's Council" of the Colony of Conn. in 1720, High Sheriff of the county for many years, and his name frequently appears on the records of the State and town, down to his death, "Aug. 23, 1753, after sunset, in the 74th year of his age."

He m., as per town record, "Monday y^e 20th May, 1702," LYDIA, dau. of JOSEPH LATHAM. She was bap. Apl. 23, 1671, in church at N. L., where, "Mch. 19, 1704, Benj. Starr, and his wife owned the covenant, and had their dau. bap." She d. May 17, 1747, in her 61st year. They sleep side by side in the ancient burying ground in N. L. At the head of each grave is an upright slab of blue slate, "with shapeless sculpture decked," of angel heads, wings, and borders, which, with the inscription of name, death, and age, are clear and legible, although the storms have beaten upon them for a century and a quarter.

After her death he m. again, as on the church record, "Feb. 19, 1748, Benj. Starr and his wife Patience admitted to full communion." Also in his will, dated Aug. 23, 1753, the day of his death, he says, "Being very sick and weak of body—to my loving wife Patience," &c. The inventory of his estate was over £10,000, including a negro man, "Manuel," at £500.

His residence on Main street was said to have been one of the first dwelling houses, regularly framed and glazed, erected in the town. It was taken down in 1851, having stood upwards of 170 years."—*Centennial Address of W. H. Starr, Esq., of N. MAINE FAMILY.

JAMES STARR, son of Jasper 354, Benjamin 353, Comfort 165; Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, b. May 2, 1740, O. S., in New London, learned the trade of cooper. With a strong, healthy constitution, and a venturesome, courageous spirit, he was well qualified to brave the dangers and encounter the hardships of his eventful life on sea and land. At the age of 18 he entered the army raised by Conn. for the French war; was in several engagements with the French and Indians, and was at Montreal when it surrendered to the British. After his term of enlistment expired, returned to his native town, and soon after went to Boston; married, and settled in Bridgewater, where, Jan. *10, 1774, his father gave him half the house and farm; but neither farm nor family could keep him when the battle cry of freedom for his country was sounded. He was a staunch and fearless patriot,—one of the "Sons of Liberty," and immediately volunteered in his country's service. He was one of the party of "Mohawks" who, disguised as Indians, threw the tea into Boston harbor on the night of Dec. 17, 1773, and he loved to tell the story of that memorable night,—how with his cooper's adze he cut open the tea chests as they were passed up on deck, and their contents thrown overboard. While in the naval service he, with others, were taken prisoners by a British vessel, carried to Halifax, and after 11 months imprisonment were put on board a transport for New York. Suspecting their destination was to be a Jersey prison-ship,—a fate worse than death,—they resolved to make an effort for deliverance. Accordingly, after being two days at sea, they rose upon the officers and guard, confined all that opposed them, took command of the ship, and carried her safely into Marblehead, Mass. When peace was declared he returned to Bridgewater, and the town records show many of his transactions in real estate. March 31, 1802, he sold the homestead and removed with his sons, daughters, and their families to Jay, Franklin Co., Me., where, with almost uninterrupted health, he passed his declining years, and calmly, patiently waited until his end came, Nov. 20, 1830. At his funeral a sermon was preached from Psalms 92, 13th and 14th verses.

Legislature in 1853; senator from Knox Co. in 1861, and d. senator-elect Oct. 6, 1863. The following extract is from the speech of his colleague, Hon. Mr. Walker, in the Senate of Me., Jan. 13, 1864: "The melancholy duty has devolved upon me to announce, through you, to this honorable body the death of my distinguished friend and colleague, Hon. Geo. A. Starr, member-elect to this Senate from the Co. of Knox, . . . and it seems not improper that I should pay some humble tribute of respect to the character and memory of one who was so highly and justly esteemed. . . . More than 30 years ago he removed to Thomaston, engaged in business, and was ever esteemed as one of the leading men of the town. He possessed the confidence of the citizens of his town and county, and was repeatedly honored by being elected to offices of responsibility and trust, which he discharged with fidelity and to the acceptance of his constituents. The community in which he resided has met with a loss which will be deeply felt, but the void will not be confined to the limits of the town,—the county has lost an able representative, and this body a wise and prudent counsellor. . . . When so conscientious, so upright, and so good a man dies, the loss is to those who survive, not to him. . . . He had attained the position of true eminence,—that of virtue, integrity, and goodness. . . . He was a Christian, and exhibited in his life and example the precepts of our Divine Teacher, in doing good and in promoting the welfare and happiness of all around him. . . His death was peaceful and happy; no clouds overhung his future, but his pathway to the grave was radiant with the hope of a blessed immortality.” Appropriate resolutions were passed, and the Senate, in token of respect, adjourned.

- + JAMES PENNIMAN, b. Sept. 5, 1788, d. at the same hour, Sept. 5, 1789.
- E JAMES PENNIMAN, b. Jan. 20, 1792. He enlisted in the U. S. Navy, and was on Com. Decatur's flagship "President" in the engagement Jan., 1815, with four British ships, when, after 8 hours of bloody conflict, she surrendered to the superior force, and was carried in to Bermuda. The following interesting letter was written by him to his brother-in-law, Joseph Alvord, dated "On board U. S. ship Guerriere, New York, Apl. 18, 1815. I had the good fortune to escape without a wound. I suppose you must of course have heard the particulars of the loss of the 'President.' After an engagement of four hours and more, we were taken by the squadron of three frigates, a seventy-four cut down, and a gun brig. We had 25 killed and died shortly after with their wounds, and between 20 and 30 wounded. I shall give you a small account of our treatment the Americans have while under the English. After being taken by them they left us nothing but what we stood in, and we had nothing more for nearly two months, and then we made out to get from our purser duck enough to make us two pair trowsers and frocks, and that is all we have had since we were taken. And after we were taken they put us on board the Endymion, and put us in the hole, where there was utter darkness and we could not see friend from foe; we could not stand, lie, nor sit; and there they kept us until we got into Bermuda, not letting but one up at a time; and our victuals were hardly enough to support nature—bread, pork, and peas was all that was allowed us. We had a half-pint of pea soup per man sent to us in a bucket, and some of us had new shoes that they put in their bosom, and we had to serve our peas in them, without any light; and a piece of pork, which was not but a very little bigger than a hen's egg, and about three half-pints of bread crumbs, for 24 hours. Such is the treatment that we received while under bloody tyrants. I am now on board of the new frigate 'Guerriere,' which I expect will be my home until I have been up the Straits against the Algerines; but am in hopes that I shall not go, for I hope that we shall stay here until July, and then my time will be out; but if we should not stay so long, the Lord only knows when I shall get home, for if we go up the Straits I think that we shall stay there two or three years, until there is peace." His fond hopes were never realized, for in Aug. or Sept., 1815, after the above letter was written, he was lost at sea in the "Epervior," a man-of-war, and "the depths covered him,"—in the 24th year of his age.

DANBURY BRANCH.

The town of Danbury, Fairfield Co., Conn., was burned by the British Sunday morning, Apl. 27, 1777, and in the conflagration the town, church, and family records were consumed. The probate records alone were saved, having been removed to New Fairfield. The General Assembly of Conn. in 1792 granted to the sufferers a large tract of land in Huron Co., O., thus partially relieving the material loss; but the loss of those valuable records is irreparable. Also many families, having lost their all in the destruction of the town, left Danbury, with no venerable family Bible and records to take with them, and thus separated from old homes, old friends, and old associations, they soon lost the family traditions, the stories, and the unwritten records handed down from generation to generation, which are of inestimable value in working up and confirming family history. Hence the great difficulty encountered from the very beginning in collecting and preparing the history of this branch of the family, more especially of the first 84 years, of which there is nothing authentic but the few meager items preserved in the probate records. The names of all who died without descendants, and doubtless many others, will be for ever unknown, but the following records, while perfect accuracy is not claimed, can surely be relied upon, in the main, having been most carefully studied out and confirmed by documentary evidence or other proof satisfactory to the compiler.

CAPT. JOSIAH STARR,—the youngest son of Dr. Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1, and the founder of the Danbury Branch,—b. Sept. 1, 1657, in Charleston, Mass., was three years old when his father died, leaving him, without paternal counsel, to make his own way in the world. Many of his descendants have followed his example in this respect, few have been more successful. The first record of him after his birth is at the age of 21, on Long Island, where he petitions Feb. 17, 1678-9, for a grant of 100 acres of land in Hempstead. Now as his sister married in H. some 10 years before, it seems quite probable that their widowed mother had removed, with the younger members of her family, to Long Island, thinking, perhaps, to better their condition, for great inducements were held out to settlers there, and many families did emigrate thither from eastern Mass. and Conn. It is evident that his riches, or his farm stock at least, did not increase rapidly, for in "An account of the valluation of the estates of thee inhabitants of y^e towne of Hampstead on Long Island is as followeth, Oct. 11, 1683, Josias Starr, heads 01, oxen 04, coves 05, two year oulds 02, year oulds 04, hoggs 01, horses and majors 02." But for some reason it appears he was not contented to remain in Hempstead, for in 1693, in company with several of his neighbors, they cross L. I. Sound, travel back some 25 miles into the country, and locate at Danbury, Conn., soon after the first settlement of that town. Josiah Starr was one of the seven Patentees named in the grant, made in 1702, giving town privileges to Danbury, and was elected the first Town Clerk, the second Justice of the Peace, afterward surveyor, etc.; in 1710 commissioned Lieut., and in 1713 Captain of the first company or "train band"; for three years was Justice of Fairfield Co.; in 1702 elected Deputy to the "General Court," a position of great honor and distinction, to which he was annually chosen as long as he lived.

Thus he appears to have been one of the leading and prominent citizens of the town, and a large landholder therein. He d. Jan. 4, 1715-16; was buried in the ancient burial-place in the rear of the present Court-House. An upright slab of gray native granite marks the sunken grave, the inscription nearly obliterated by the storms of more than 160 years, and is the oldest gravestone erected to the memory of a STARR in New England.

Feb. 3, 1715-16, administration was taken on his estate by wife Rebekah and son Thomas; inventory £982 16s. 3d.; was distributed to the widow, six sons, and two daughters, according to law the eldest son receiving a double portion. He was probably married on Long Island. There is no record, however, of it. His wife REBEKAH d. July 15, 1739, æ. 74; buried by her husband.

(6014.) 1. Starr, Hicks, Carman. Has the maiden name and parentage of the wife of Captain Josiah (3) Starr (Dr. Thomas 2, Comfort 1) been found? I was told some years ago by a so-called genealogist that not his wife Rebecca but a wife Elizabeth was the mother of his children. This Elizabeth was said to have been the daughter of John (2) Hicks (Robert 1), who had married second, Florence (Fordham) Carman, widow of John Carman, and had had by her one child, Elizabeth, who married Captain Josiah Starr.

The proof, as he gave it was based on the fact that in his will John Hicks spoke of Josiah Starr as his "son-in-law." Unless the marriage to Florence Carman is proved, it seems likely that John Hicks called Josiah Starr son-in-law because he had married the mother of Josiah, Rachel Starr. I have never seen a record of this supposed second marriage of John Hicks. Has anyone discovered the maiden name and parentage of Rachel, wife of Dr. Thomas Starr and later wife of John Hicks?

2. Phelps, Adams. Is anything known of the English ancestry of Edward (1) Phelps, who married Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Robert Adams? Was Robert Adams of the same Adams family as the progenitor of the famous Adams family?

COMFORT STARR,—the youngest son of Capt. Josiah 391, Dr. Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. Oct. 20, 1706, in Danbury. He was an enterprising merchant, and became one of the wealthiest men of his native town, an extensive landholder, and dealer in real estate. He sold May 6, 1748, a tract of land in Abington, Ply. Co., Mass., for £5,000, and at the time of his decease owned land not only in Danbury and vicinity, but in several towns in Litchfield Co. A banker, and in 1741 took certain "Bills of Credit" issued by the Colony, and petitions for the speedy delivery of all he contracted for. He appears to have been one of the prominent and influential men of the town and colony; was appointed several times by the latter on special committees; was the first Clerk of the Court of Probate; his last entry was made on the books June 16, 1748; Registrar of deeds; and in 1752-3 Deputy to the General Court. The First church has a beautiful solid silver baptismal bowl of antique shape, 11 inches in diameter, with the following engraved on the rim: "The Gift of Mr. Comfort Starr, March' in Danbury, Connecticut, N. E., to the Church of Christ in said Town. Aug. 25, 1753." His grave is near his father's in the ancient burying ground, marked by a large, nearly square, slab of blue slate, finely finished and ornamented. The deep, clear-cut inscription tells the story that

"Here lyes Buried the body of
who departed this life May 11, 1763, æ. 56 yrs. 6 m. 21 days."

His wife HANNAH, after his death, m. Thomas Hill, Esq., and when she d. in 1791 was called Mrs. Hannah Pierce, wid. of Comfort Starr.

A SON.

A NATHAN, b. Sept. 6, 1732; graduated at Yale Coll. in 1750; d. June 9, 1752; buried by the side of his father. A stone similar in size and finish reads:

“Here lyes interred ye body of
Nathan Starr,

Batchelor of Arts, only child of Mr. Comfort Starr, merchant, and Mrs. Hannah, his wife who departed this life, much lamented, June 9, 1752, æ. 19 yrs., 9 mos., 3 dys.

The Orb is set in Dust,
The Star doth ever shine;
The Orb this tomb shall burst
In beauty all divine;
And in it shall the Star forever move
In one eternal round of flaming love.”

In the will of Comfort Starr, dated on the day of his death, the following are among the many bequests: To wife Hannah, my two negro children, Pegg and Fancey; to Comfort, son of Capt. John Starr, in consideration of his name, my best gun and my silver-hilted sword; to my nephew, Peter Starr, a member of Yale College, . . . till he takes his first degree, and to pay back when he is 21, ——; £30 to an Indian school under the care of Rev. Mr. Wheelock, and £800 lawful money for the support of a school in the center of the town to be under the direction of the civil authority and selectmen; the instruction to be capable of teaching reading, writing, and arithmetic, Latin and Greek languages, &c. During the war of Revolution this fund depreciated to the sum of £488, 12s. 9d. By Act of the Conn. Legislature, passed May session, 1798, this school was converted into a school of higher order. Of its subsequent history the compiler has no information.

After these and other specified bequests, the residue of his estate was to be divided among all the children of his brothers and sisters. The inventory amounted to £3,421, 16s. 1d. of real, and £4,989, 2s. 3d. of personal estate. The distribution made Apl. 15, 1767, after his death, and Mch. 5, 1791, after the death of his widow, among the “children of his brothers and sisters,” proved of invaluable assistance in collecting these records by giving the names of all his nieces and nephews at those dates.

THOMAS STARR,—son of Capt. Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—lived in Danbury; was Lister in 1723. At the May session of the General Court, in 1726, he was granted, on his own petition, a patent of 100 acres of land between Danbury on the north and Norwalk and Fairfield on the south. He d. before Mch. 7, 1733-4, for on that day his widow, ELIZABETH, (of whom nothing more is known) was appointed admnr. on his estate, and June 6, 1734, guardian of Thomas and Jerusha, children of sd. dec'd. In the inventory presented are the following items: "Half the house; the Picket house and lot; Land at Walnut tree hill, &c." Of his library the following verbatim copy is not only interesting, but from it may be inferred something of the character of the man, whose history was consumed in the flames of D.: "grate Bible, £2.16.—small do., 6 s.—Psalm Book, 2 s.—3 bunnians Books, 13 s.—1. mr. mathers book, 3 s.—Epplication chatechism, 4 s.—1. These simple items from the State records give only an intimation of the position he occupied, and deepen the regret at the irreparable loss to our family history in the destruction of the town records by the British.

In a day-book still in existence, under date of Jan. 15, 1753, is a charge to Lieut. Benj. Starr "for weaving a coverlid," and balanced by "James two days threshing." - D JEDDIA LUDLOW, b. Apl. 16, 1836, in Morris Co., N. Vols., and from that day until the end, he kept a pocket journal, and wrote more than 70 letters to his mother and sister, giving a graphic and minute detail of his daily life and experience, expressing the most tender love for his friends, and a noble patriotism for his country. The following extracts are from these papers:

"I am getting used to camp life, am well pleased with it, and hope I may be of some service to my country before I return home, if I ever have that pleasure."

"I feel lonely sometimes in the crowded barracks. Then I go outside the camp, on the hills, and, amid the beauty and wonderful works of nature, forget all about it. On Sunday I strolled out on a hill, overlooking the river and surrounding country, and into a graveyard, where I was sad as I thought of times past and gone, and of what may happen while I am away, as mother is getting on in years, and should I live to return, may never see her again, but I shall live in hopes."

"The more one sees and hears of the horrible, the more hardened and insensible he becomes, but I do hope that I may always retain feelings of humanity and sympathy with suffering."

In July, 1863, they started on their long march from Cape Girardeau, Mo., through the country to Little Rock, Ark., and during the fall and winter were in active service on the White river, etc., in tiresome marches, skirmishing, foraging, scarcity of water, sickness, etc., but without one word of complaint, he writes:

"I had rather be at home, but let the war go on until the Union is restored. I am in for the war."

In one of his last letters he says:

"I wish the war was over, but am resigned. Let the God that rules the destinies of nations rule us."

In March they joined the Red River expedition, under Gen. Banks, for Shreveport, La., skirmishing almost every day. The last entry in his diary, Wednesday, Apl. 6, reads:

"Clear this morning—marching orders, with five days' rations."

Three days after, on Saturday, Apl. 9, 1864, his regiment was engaged in the fight at Pleasant Hill, La., and suffered terribly. In the thickest of the fight he received a shot in the breast, said, "I am killed!" and the noble fellow was dead. The enemy buried him somewhere under the sunny skies of Louisiana in an unknown grave.

BROOKFIELD, CONN., FAMILY.

CAPT. JOHN STARR,—son of Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. in 1684, probably on Long Island; was young when his parents settled in Danbury. He owned a large tract of land in the Beaver Brook district, where he lived, in the northeast portion of the town. A large part of this land lay within the present limits of the town of Brookfield,* and remains in the possession of his descendants until this day. It is evident he was a man of wealth and prominence in Danbury, for in 1731, '33, '34, and '35 he was sent as Deputy to the General Court,—a position of great honor in those days, and the record shows that he left a large property to one, at least, of his daughters. He was chosen May 10, 1723, Lieut., and May 14, 1733, Captain of the North company or "train band," and Oct. 9, 1739, the company was warned to meet to fill the office made vacant by the recent decease of Capt. John Starr. He d. July 27, 1739, æ. 55; buried with his kindred in the ancient burial place in Danbury. He left no will. Administration on his estate was granted to his sons, John and Jonathan, Sept. 18, 1739; inventory taken Sept. 23 by his brothers, Benjamin and Josiah, and Nov. 20 Josiah was appointed guardian to his son Eleazer, he being under age for choosing one. There being no will, and the town records destroyed, no trace is left of even the name of his wife.

His property was confiscated to the State. The children petitioned the General Assembly, setting forth at length that their dec'd mother was wealthy; that they had been loyal, and asked that at least the title of the widow's third, and what she received from her uncle Comfort Starr's estate, be given them. This petition was granted, and his second wife, formerly Widow Mary Platt, who claimed to have been a good Whig also, was given her thirds of the estate.

At the breaking out of the civil war he was in the practice of his profession at Sparta, Mo. There were but three Union men in the town, including himself. He was duly notified that he was raised too far North to live there, unless he would go with the South, and was promised a commission as assistant surgeon in the Confederate service if he would do so, which offer was at once positively declined. On the night of Nov. 2, 1861, his house was visited by an armed band of bushwhackers raiding through the country, who seized him, took him to a tree, to serve him as they did four other Union men that same night; but in this instance their plan was frustrated by the fortunate appearance of a band of 200 Union men in pursuit of them. The next day he removed to St. Joseph, Buchanan Co., and Jan. 25, 1862, enlisted in an Artillery Co.; discharged June 30, 1862, for disability. After serving as Provost Marshal of the county for several months, he was commissioned June 29, 1863, Asst. five years in Chili; then settled at Honeoye Falls, Monroe Co., N. Y.; carpenter; Methodist. A local paper gives the following account of his tragic death: "He had lived at Honeoye Falls for 25 years, honored and respected by his neighbors, kind, honest, capable, and faithful to every public trust confided to him by the people of the town. He was surrounded by a family alike respected, honored, industrious, and worthy. He was a constable of the town, and as such a warrant was placed in his hands for the arrest of a young man. About dusk of Oct. 30, 1857, in the performance of this duty, he went, in his usual quiet way, as was his nature, found the young man in a store in the village, and made the arrest. He offered some resistance; the constable got him on to the walk in front, when the villain turned upon him, stabbed him with a knife between the ribs, killing him instantly."

The murderer was sentenced to the State Prison for life, and was pardoned by Gov. Seymour in about six years.

DEA. FLOYD STARR,—son of Dea. Orange 535,—b. Apl. 5, 1803, in Milltown, Dutchess Co., N. Y.; learned the shoemakers' trade, and was 12 years old when his parents removed to Ont. Co. In the spring of 1817 his father bought land in Barre, Orleans Co.,

then almost a wilderness, and Floyd, at the age of 14, was sent to work it for the summer, and lived alone in a log cabin; the sleep of the laboring boy was not always sweet, for it was frequently disturbed by the howling of wolves around his cabin. On the 7th of June, 1817, there was a severe snow-storm, covering the young corn, and some of his newly-sheared sheep perished of the cold. His Robinson Crusoe life ended in the fall by the arrival of the family. In 1818 he became a Christian, and united with a Cong. church located 7 miles from his home, to which he walked every Sunday. He was deeply interested in the spiritual welfare of the neighborhood, and in 1831 started a prayer-meeting in the school-house, and was the only professing Christian present at the first meeting, but the meetings were continued. A revival followed, and 60 souls were converted, a Cong. church was organized, a house of worship erected, a prosperous congregation gathered, and he was elected deacon, which office he held for 20 years. He was a strong anti-slavery man, an active worker in the cause of temperance; filled many town and county offices with ability; a Capt., afterward Colonel, in the militia until exempt by age. He secured by frugality and patient industry a competence, and gave liberally to the poor and all worthy objects of benevolence. In 1873 he left Barre, the scene of his labors and successes, and went to spend the declining years of a useful life with his only daughter at Norwich, Conn.

Y.; a tailor; senior Warden of Zion Epis. church, for nearly 30 years; held various offices of honor and trust in the town; in Mass. was Capt. of a military company. The "Gospel Messenger" said of him: "As an earnest, pious churchman his career has been an example of meekness and love, yet of unflinching firmness in the discharge of his duties. During the latter part of his sickness his sufferings were very severe, but he bore them without a murmur or complaint, and calmly fell asleep in the sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection." A grandson, in an editorial in his paper, says: "He was our beloved and venerable grandsire. The associations of our boyhood and youth are indissolubly linked with him. His benevolent and venerable look; his love and kindness; his kind instructions; the incidents and stern realities of his early life, as he often related them to us while we were sitting on his knee; the story of the sights he witnessed when the British burned Danbury, in the days that tried men's souls; his description of Washington and his wife, of Putnam, of Stark, of Lafayette, and other immortal sons of liberty, whom he saw,—each and all are as green in our memory as the grass that waves beside his tomb." CAPT. ELEAZER STARR,—son of John 448, Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—was probably born at Beaver Brook, Danbury. His father died in July; the following “Nov. 20, 1739, his uncle, Josiah Starr, was appointed his guardian, he being under age for choosing a guardian.” May 6, 1754, he was clerk of a militia meeting. In the society meeting held 1767, “Ens. Eleazer Starr, with 3 others are by vote Desired to Take cair and Tune the Psalms in our Publick worship”; in 1777 it was “Voted, that Capt. Eleazer Starr be desired to read the Psalms in the absence of Lieut. Trowbridge”; this duty was soon performed on his part, for in April of that year the British burned Danbury, and the Psalm-reader was among the slain. The particulars must be gathered from the following: Rev. Thomas Robbins’ century sermon, delivered 24 years afterward, says, “The enemy entered the town on Saturday, Apl. 26, 1777, at about 3 o’clock p. m.; several persons were murdered; one very valuable house, with four persons in it, was burned immediately. The enemy, fearful of their retreat being cut off, rallied early on the morning of the 27th, set fire to the stores and dwellings, and marched out of the town.”

Hinman’s Appendix to the above says, “As the head of the British army arrived at the Court-House, four men stationed in the dwelling-house of Maj. Daniel Starr, a few rods distant, fired upon them from the windows and fled. They were pursued and shot down, their bodies thrown into the house, and the house burned. Early on Sunday morning, Apl. 27, 1777, every dwelling-house was set on fire, except those belonging to the Tories.”

Tradition in the family says, “That Capt. Eleazer removed his family to a hill outside the town for safety, returned to defend the town, was killed, and his body burned.” From the above it is probable he was one of the four men who were in Maj. Starr’s house, was killed, and his body consumed, on the afternoon of Apl. 26, 1777.

RAYMOND STARR,—son of Eleazer 563, Eleazer 558, John 448, Josiah 391, Thomas 7. Dr. Comfort 1,—b. Jan. 8, 1786, in Danbury, Conn.; brought up in Harpersfield, N. Y.; was a merchant for a while in Catskill, N. Y., where he built a brick store; removed Oct., 1828, to Penfield, O.; thence, in 1831, to Elyria, where he d. Aug. 23, 1870; church warden; Episcopal. The local paper gave an interesting account of their "golden wedding," celebrated with appropriate religious exercises, where were present six of his brothers and sisters, seven children, twenty-five grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. During the whole fifty years no brother or sister had died, and but one child and five grandchildren. The clergyman, adverting to the remarkable fact that all the brothers and sisters of the couple were still alive and vigorous, said "That although these happy events were of the Lord's special mercy, yet there were in the lives of these individuals certain means to be recognized by which the Providence of God had brought about such results. These were the diligence, regularity of habit, and temperance of life, for which they had always been distinguished.—freedom from the use of any intoxicating beverage, and, with one or two exceptions, of tobacco." Ten years later they celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary, when seven of their eight children were living, 24 gr. children, and seven gr.-grandchildren. The same paper says: "The venerable couple are yet hale and hearty, and almost any pleasant Sabbath may be seen walking, arm-in-arm, to the Episcopal church, which is quite a distance from their residence. . . . Their habits of life have been uniform for a long series of years. Temperate and frugal in all things, they have, by observing the laws of health, not only lengthened out their days beyond the period allotted to man, but have the promise of years of enjoyment yet in store for them. There are few family gatherings where all the relatives have been so signally blest with health and worldly prosperity,—the happy results of industry, morality, temperance, and virtue."

CAPT. JOSIAH STARR,—son of Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—was born about 1693. May 14, 1739, he presented the following memorial to the General Assembly of the Colony of Conn: "Josiah Starr, of Danbury, Humbly Sheweth, That he purchased a Right of land in the Southern Township, bounded west on the Housatonic river, Apl. 29, 1738, and gave bonds for £189, 5s. therefor to the Government, payable in two years, etc.

. . . In August last, when most of the fruits of the year were gathered in, his barn, that was 40 feet in length and 30 feet in breadth, and completely filled with wheat, oats, and hay, was set on fire by the lightning and entirely consumed, saving a few shocks of wheat and a little hay in the bottom of the mow,—saved by industriously quenching the fire; and also his dwelling house that stood near to sd barn, notwithstanding all the industry that could be used, was at the same time burnt and entirely consumed to ashes, with a considerable part of his household goods, by which adverse Providence . . . he lost to the value of £800; . . . that he has six sons that will probably want land to work upon, but are young and not able yet to settle sd right of land, nor is he able, by reason of sd adverse Providence, to settle the same, nor to pay sd purchase money, . . . prays them to commiserate his circumstances, by the extension of time, or in some other way relieve him, . . . he giving Bonds with sufficient security." The petition was granted, and he was allowed four years longer time for payment, and for entering upon said land, building, fencing, and clearing it.

He became a prominent and wealthy citizen of Danbury; lived on the east side of the main street, next south of his brother Benjamin's homestead, which was bounded on the north by Horse Island lane. In 1741 he, with his brothers Samuel and Comfort, took a State loan of £275. The General Assembly of Conn. appointed him, in 1748, on a committee to locate a meeting-house in Reading; commissioned him, May 12, 1741, ensign; Oct. 8, 1743, lieut., and Oct. 6, 1746, captain of the 1st Co. or "train band" (resigned in 1752); "July, 1745, to be Capt. of one of the Co's now to be raised and sent to Cape Breton to reinforce the troops there;" "May, 1746, to be Capt. of the 5th Co. in the reg't to be raised in the expedition against Canada;" in 1746 and 1752 was Deputy to the General Court. He was moderator of the meetings of the First Society; one of the committee for years; frequently on special committees,—about the minister's salary, seating the meeting-house, etc. Full of honors and full of years, he "d. Dec., 1778, in his 85th year;" thus reads the gravestone erected to his memory in 1790, in the ancient cemetery in Danbury.

BETHEL, CONN., FAMILY.

The flourishing village of Bethel, about three miles southeast of Danbury center, was a part of that town until its incorporation in 1855. The dividing line cuts the district of "Grassy Plain" where this family resided, so that part is now in Danbury and part in Bethel. The Society of Bethel was incorporated Oct., 1759; the next year the church was organized and the meeting-house built.

CAPT. THOMAS STARR,—son of Josiah 587, Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. about 1720; a shoemaker; lived in "Grassy Plain," Danbury, now in the town of Bethel. He was one of the petitioners, Oct. 10, 1759, for a new society in the south part of Danbury, to be called Eastbury. This was the origin of the First church in Bethel, to which he and his wife Mary were admitted Nov. 2, 1784. A triple wedding was celebrated at his house on the evening of May 22, 1783, when his dau. Jerusha, his nephew, Thaddeus Starr, and Eliakim Benedict, a relative, were married by Rev. Mr. Wetmore, and immediately after the ceremony danced the reel of six by the music of the fiddle, before sitting down. When the British burned Danbury Apl. 27, 1777, he was one of the citizen soldiers who rallied to the defence of the town, and was struck down by a British officer with his cutlass, making a terrible wound across the head, taking the scalp and part of the face, and left for dead at the foot of Liberty street. He was taken up by his friends and tenderly cared for, but never entirely recovered from the effects of the wound, and carried the frightful scar to his grave. He rendered his country most faithful service as a soldier in the late war; enlisted Aug. 10, 1862, in the 135th Reg't N. Y. Vols., and Oct. 3 was transferred to Co. A, 6th Reg't N. Y. Heavy Artillery, but always performed infantry duty. The regiment was in Md. and

Va. in various skirmishes, but not until May 4, 1864, commenced the active work from which there was no let up or furlough, sometimes no rest even, until the final surrender of Lee's army. On the above day they marched from 4 A. M. to 10 P. M., and encamped near the "Wilderness" tavern. At 2 A. M. whispered orders came to fall in, and the brigade started in the early dawn to the left to the support of Gen. Wadsworth; then followed the three days' terrible fighting in the Wilderness, succeeded by the marching and fighting all the way to Richmond, and June 18 found them in line of battle before Petersburg. He was one of the detailed for special duty at the front, where for eight days on the open field, within range of the rifle-shot of the enemy, they toiled, digging holes and trenches by night, through which they went on their hands and knees for water, rations, etc. The regiment was present at the explosion of the mine, all ready for the grand charge. Afterward, for three months at Harper's Ferry and vicinity, at the battle of Cedar Creek, where Gen. Sheridan turned a rout into a victory, at Winchester, etc. Jan., 1865, the regiment was ordered back to Petersburg, and was in the final charge of the rebel breastworks Apl. 2, which were found evacuated. Through all this conflict he passed unharmed, and was discharged July 19, 1865. The limits of this work prevent more extended extracts from his full and most interesting diary.

He m. Aug. 23, 1868, ANNA, dau. of RICHARD and REBECCA (Foster) HARRISON, b. Dec. 14, 1849, at East Liverpool, O.

A LEWIS GEORGE, b. June 22, 1869.

MAJOR DANIEL STARR,—son of Josiah 587, Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. 1724; was a merchant in Danbury, and lived, as history tells us, in a "valuable" house on the west side of the main street, on the spot now occupied by the residence of David P. Nichols, Esq. This house, where Gen. Washington was once entertained, was the first one burned by the enemy on their raid into Danbury, and in it were consumed the bodies of four men, who from its windows had fired upon the British soldiers, then fled, were pursued, shot down, their bodies thrown into the house, which was then set on fire. Major Starr was one of the distinguished and wealthy men of the town; selectman for several successive years; sometime treasurer, and for 16 years committee of the First Society, and frequently appointed on special, important service; in 1772 the ringing of the bell was let to him for 30 shillings, the next year he took the job for 25 shillings. He was in the expedition of 1757 for the relief of Fort William Henry; afterward joined the Continental army; commissioned Major; and lost his life Apl. 27, 1777, the morning after the destruction of his house. The particulars of his death are only known from family tradition, which says that while mounting his horse to go out to meet the enemy, the horse jumped, the Major was thrown and instantly killed. Another version is, that while on his horse he was shot, fell, and died immediately.

The following memorial of his son Ezra to the General Assembly is interesting, not alone for the historical facts narrated, but as showing somewhat the pleasant character of the family, especially of Ezra, who was anxious to carry out his dec'd father's wishes, although at his own pecuniary loss,—a noble example worthy of imitation.

It was dated Oct. 10, 1781, "Shewing That his father, Major Daniel Starr, being called forth in the defence of his country to New York, in the month of August, 1776, while there did make his last will and testament by which he disposed of his estate in the following manner [giving a copy of the will]. Upon his return from N. Y. he informed his wife and children in what manner he had ordered his estate to be settled by sd. will, very different from the disposition made thereof by a former will which was then in the house, gave them the perusal of the same, and had the satisfaction of seeing them well pleased therewith. In the month of April following, the British troops made an inroad into Danbury, at which time your memorialist's Father unhappily lost his life, his dwelling house and almost every thing therein were consumed to ashes; he endeavoured to save the valuable writings belonging to his father, but in that time of great distraction and confusion they were hastily collected together and hurried off: sometime after this melancholy catastrophe, in examining the papers thus saved, found the former will above mentioned, but never able to find the last, although he had seen it sundry times, and not long before the house was burnt, so he must conclude it was burnt with the house, and although sd. will is much in favor of your memorialist, yet as he verily thinks it was not that by which his honored father meant to have his estate settled, he has not yet proceeded to any settlement. Wherefore your memorialist humbly prays your Honors to take the above case into your wise consideration, and order and decree the sd. Estate to be distributed as follows, which is according to the directions and provisions of the lost will.”

“We, the subscribers, the widow and daughters of Maj. Daniel Starr, dec'd, do hereby certify that the material facts stated in the foregoing memorial are just and true, and do therefore join with the memorialist in requesting the Hon. General Assembly that the prayer thereof may be granted. Signed, Rachel Starr, Rachel Starr, Jr., Rebecca Starr.” The petition was granted, and estate settled accordingly.

The inv. amounted to £10,080, 5s. of real, £6,271, 12s. of personal estate. Among the Fire Lands awarded the estate for losses by the burning of Danbury was “Bull’s Island,” Sandusky Bay, O.; this descended to his grandson, Henry L. Whiting, who sold it about 1822 for $25. It is now called Johnson’s Island, and was the prison for captured rebels in the civil war. A silver tankard and milk-pitcher, once belonging to Maj. Daniel, are now in the possession of Mr. Whiting’s daughter. A marble slab marks the Maj.’s grave in the old cem. His widow RACHEL d. Nov. 9, 1810, æ. 84, leaving the memory of “an excellent woman.”

In 1777 he was awarded £2,296, and in 1778 an additional sum, for his loss by the burning of Danbury. CAPT. JOSEPH STARR,—son of Josiah 587, Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. about 1726; lived in the “Plum Tree” district, Danbury—now Bethel—a mile and a half northeast of the village; a shoemaker; had a tannery and a farm; a soldier in the war of the Revolution. Nov. 2, 1784, he with his wife united with the Cong. church of Bethel.

“He d. April 3, 1802, in the 76th year of his age, after a distressing illness of about five weeks, which he bore with admirable patience, resigned to the will of God. His posterity were 11 children, 39 gr.-ch., and 24 gr.-gr.-ch., 74 in all, 66 of whom were living at his decease. He was a man possessed of a mild and even temper, adorned his profession by a life of humility and obedience, which was manifest in a strict attendance upon the duties of religion, and was seldom absent from public worship. He was affable, benevolent, and hospitable, a man of few words. He had many friends and few enemies; lived beloved, and died greatly lamented.” The above is a foot note to “A sermon delivered on the Lord’s Day, at the funeral of Capt. Joseph Starr, by the Rev. John Ely, pastor of the 2d church in Danbury.” The following extract is from the sermon: “You, madam, are by the providence of God called to put on the garments of widowhood, and to sit alone; but, although you are called to mourning, yet, we trust, you have reason to mourn in hope, and to believe that your loss hath proved his unspeakable gain; and have you not grounds of thankfulness as well as sorrow, and reason to sing of mercy as well as judgment? Long hath your period of tranquillity been lengthened out, much beyond that of others. You have abundant reason to acknowledge the goodness of God towards you, that he hath been pleased to continue to you the partner of your youth even to this advanced period of your life, until your family were all arrived to manhood, and themselves settled in family state and connections; also do you enjoy peculiarly the smile of Providence towards you, that, notwithstanding your head and husband, the partner of your joys and sorrows, is now taken from you, yet you have your children mostly around you to comfort you, and to partake of this cup of your afflictions with you, and that they are in circumstances to be, in a sense, the stay and support of your advanced years," etc., etc.

SAMUEL STARR,—son of Samuel 650, Josiah 391, Thomas 7. Dr. Comfort 1,—b. July 28, 1732; lived in Ridgebury Society, town of Ridgefield, Ct. Its locality will be better understood by the following memorial, signed by himself and two neighbors, presented to the General Assembly, May, 1759: "That we are owners of 256 acres of land adjoining the west line of Danbury; that we live on said land, are obliged to do duty in Ridgefield, it being 10 miles distant, and a very bad road, so that it is impracticable for us ever to attend divine worship at R., nor have any benefit of schools there; . . . we have ever attended at D., whose meeting-house is but about 4 miles, and there being a school at Mill Plain, a scant miles from us, and the road or way to D. being very good. . . . pray to be annexed to Danbury." It was not granted.

Feb. 16, 1761, he signed a petition for a new Society at the north end of the town of Ridgefield, to be called Ridgebury.

He was attacked of the small pox, and, fearing he should not recover, sent for his brother-in-law, Eli Mygatt, to make his will, to whom, while standing by the fence outside, he—within the house—dictated his wishes. Mr. Mygatt then had it drawn in regular form, agreeable to the directions, and it was properly executed Oct. 10, 1770. Soon after he became delirious, got hold of the document, tore off his name, and otherwise mutilated it. These facts being proved before the General Assembly, they "Resolved that the mutilated paper be declared his last Will and Testament, and ordered the estate settled accordingly." He d. July 22, 1786, in Ridgebury parish; received a common school education; was a great reader, with a wonderful memory; a man of few words and many deeds; a carpenter with a genius for mechanical invention; settled in Danbury. He framed the first house by the square rule ever put together in the town.—now the common method, but then considered impossible. He was greatly interested in reading of the invention of the circular saw in England, and was the first to put it into practical operation here. He dammed a small stream that ran through his grounds, built a mill, and put up a circular saw and turning lathe, by power, and numbers of people from far and near came to see the wonderful inventions. This mill was the beginning of the business now successfully carried on by his son on the same spot. He represented the town in the General Assembly in 1831, 1832, and 1833, and was a member of the Senate one year; an active Christian and local preacher in the Methodist church; exerted a wide influence for good; d. Dec. 16, 1819, at Danbury; always lived in his native town; of the firm of Starr & Barnum, extensive house-builders, &c.; a consistent Christian and class-leader in the Methodist church. He devoted some time in gathering records of the Starrs of his town, which the compiler of this work has been kindly permitted to copy. He lost his life in the service of his country, having enlisted Aug. 16, 1862, in Co. B, 23d Reg't Ct. Vols.; was made 1st Lieut., and filled temporarily several other positions, acting as Commissary, Quartermaster, Captain, and often in the absence of the Chaplain performed his duties. His Col. said "he was one of the most valuable men in the Reg't." The following extracts are from letters announcing his death, at La Fourche, La.

"On Sunday, June 21, 1863, the Rebels made an attack upon us at La Fourche crossing, and during the engagement Lieut. Starr received a musket ball in his left leg, near the groin, rendering amputation necessary. He remained cheerful and composed; though suffering severely, not a murmur escaped his lips, but bore it all with a Christian calmness and heroism, frequently saying, 'I have done my duty, and am suffering only what God would have me suffer.' Thus patiently he lingered until Thursday, June 25, 1863, death came to his relief." Among the resolutions adopted by the officers of the regiment on the occasion of his death, one reads: "That we will ever cherish, with sentiments of admiration, a remembrance of the unvarying patriotism, unflinching courage, and religious integrity exhibited by him," &c.

FREDERICK STARR,—son of Platt 684, Samuel 651, Samuel 650, Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. May 1, 1799, at Warren, Ct. Among his schoolmates were his cousin, Charles G. Finney, and Horace Bushnell, the late eminent Doctors of Divinity. At the age of 20 he went to New York as clerk in the book-store of his Uncle Samuel; in 1822 to Rochester, N. Y., then a village, and engaged in the manufacture of furniture; the pioneer of what is now one of the leading industries of the city, and built up a large and successful business, to which in 1850 he added piano making, retiring from business five years before his death. He served one term in the N. Y. Legislature. He became a Christian in his youth, grew and ripened into a noble character, a life consecrated to the service of God, to the good of the church, to every religious and philanthropic enterprise, to the elevation and benefit of mankind. He was one of the founders and elders of the First Pres. church; in 1856 united with the Central Pres. church; was chosen elder, and frequently a delegate to the N. S. Pres. Assembly; was present at Pittsburgh, at the reunion with the Old School branch, and said "it was the happiest event of his life,"—and it proved one of the last, for on that occasion he was taken with a fatal illness. He assisted in establishing, and was afterward proprietor of the "Genesee Evangelist," trustee of the "Ingham University," one of the founders of "Auburn Theological Seminary," and President of its Board of Trustees at the time of his death. He took great delight in the study of the Bible, and in the Bible-class his earnestness and faith in what he taught inspired others to thought and effort. His dying charge and testimony was, "My son, be good; do good; life has no reward, no happiness like the consciousness of doing good to your fellow-men." He d. Nov. 27, 1869.

REV. FREDERICK STARR,—son of Frederick 685,—b. Jan. 26, 1826, at Rochester, N. Y.; converted at the age of 10 years, and united with the First Pres. church; graduated at Yale Coll. in 1846, and at Auburn Theol. Seminary in 1849; early the next year went to St. Louis, and across the State to Weston, a town of 3,000 inhabitants, near the Kansas line, four miles from Fort Leavenworth. After performing missionary service among the crowd of emigrants encamped there en route to Cal., he received a call to the pastorate of the Pres. church in W. His father, wishing him to settle nearer home, objected, to whom he replied, "Father, father, father, have you not always taught me from a child where there was any work to be done, which no other man would do, to take hold and do it? I have traveled many thousands of miles, and nowhere have I found a place so wicked, so sunk in sin, and where any other minister will be so little likely to incline, or dare to go, as Weston, and that is my reason for wishing to go there." To this the father yielded, and gave his cordial consent. He was accordingly ordained and installed over the Pres. church in Oct., 1850, where, in full maturity, strong, resolute, ardent, apparently incapable of fatigue, he devoted himself to the service of his Master; faithful among his own people, daily in the saddle doing missionary work throughout a large section, assisting in organizing churches, establishing Sunday-schools, and in promoting the cause of temperance, where drunkenness was a fearful curse.

He advocated by speech and pen the admission of Kansas as a free State, and the abolition of slavery in Missouri; wrote a series of pamphlets which were widely circulated throughout the country, were published in the N. Y. Tribune, and awoke comment north and south on the subject of which they treated, viz., "The Relation of Slavery to the Population, and to the Social, Moral, and Political Forces of the State." The writer was unknown, and on one occasion the pamphlet was gravely read to the author by the unsuspecting editor of one of the papers of the State, who, while reading it, comforted him with the remark, "that if the writer were known it would hang him higher than Haman." After enduring for two years the persecutions of Atchison and his Border Ruffians, and of the Platte Co. Association, formed for the purpose of banishing all the open and suspected friends of freedom, before whom he also was summoned, deeming his life no longer safe, he left W. after a residence there of 5 years, returned to N. Y., became agent for the endowment of Auburn Theol. Sem., and for the Western Education Soc. In 1862 became pastor of the church in Penn Yan, N. Y. After a successful ministry of three years, his heart yearned for his adopted State of Missouri, and in the spring of 1865 was installed over the North Pres. church of St. Louis, then struggling under a heavy debt, its members scattered and estranged by reason of the war. In his pastorate of less than two years the debt was paid, the church refurnished, with a large and prosperous Sunday-school, and a membership greatly increased. In 1866, when the cholera prevailed in St. Louis, he devoted himself without rest to the work of visiting the sick and dying, carrying relief and consolation. His courage, fidelity, and kindness endeared him to all. But there is a limit to human endurance; the seeds of his fatal illness were taken in this labor of love, and lingering until Jan. 8, 1867, he rested from his labors. At St. Louis a large assembly gathered at his funeral. At Auburn, N. Y., the city pastors and the professors of the Seminary awaited the arrival of his remains, and laid them to rest in the cemetery there by the side of his little ones. Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby said of him, "When he died the whole church sighed."

REV. PETER STARR,—son of Samuel 650, Josiah 391, Thomas 7, Dr. Comfort 1,—b. Sept. 1744, at Ridgefield, parish of Ridgebury. His father died in the Dec. following, and a pious mother cherished alone his infancy, guided his childhood, was the happy instrument of his early hopeful conversion and consecration to the gospel ministry. On his dying bed he remembered her with the most tender affection, and thanked God for her counsel and example. When 16 years of age he entered Yale Coll.; graduated in 1764; taught school for three and one-half years; prosecuted his theological studies under the direction of Rev. Daniel Brinsmade and Rev. Joseph Bellamy, D.D., neighboring pastors; was licensed to preach June 6, 1769. In 1771 he commenced preaching in Warren, Litchfield Co., Conn.; accepted a call to settle; ordained Mch. 13, 1772, and continued his faithful pastorate until his death, a period of 57 years. In Mch., 1794, he performed missionary service in Vermont; in 1813 was chosen Fellow of the Corporation of Yale College; resigned in 1818.

His preaching was evangelical and practical. During his ministry 306 were received into the church on profession. In his 55th year he was suddenly stricken with fatal illness, and exclaimed, "Blessed Jesus, to thy hands I commend my departing spirit," but revived, and patiently, calmly waited for two months longer, and d. July 17, 1829. While lingering, he said, "Whoever preaches my funeral sermion, I wish nothing to be said in eulogy of me, for I die an unworthy sinner. I have always been an unprofitable servant. If I am saved, it will be by sovereign grace through Jesus Christ." They laid him to rest in the village graveyard by the side of a venerated mother, a valued wife, four beloved children, and among the congregation to whom he had ministered.

THE HISTORY OF THE

The history of the world is a vast and complex subject, encompassing the lives of countless individuals and the events of numerous nations. It is a story of human progress, struggle, and triumph, of the rise and fall of empires, and the enduring quest for knowledge and justice. The study of history allows us to understand the forces that have shaped our world and to learn from the experiences of those who have gone before us. It is a discipline that challenges us to think critically and to seek the truth in a world of competing narratives and interests. The history of the world is not just a collection of facts and dates, but a living and breathing story that continues to unfold in the present and will continue to do so in the future.

Aug. 9, 1696, town record (July 13, 1697, family rec.), and was living at Dedham in 1720, but must have left there soon after, for in 1723 he bought 1,000 acres of land in the North parish of Killingly, Ct., part of which he sold, reserving to himself what became his homestead, located a little west of what is known as Brandy Hill, now in the town of Thompson, Ct. Records of the church, 1728: "Comfort Starr and others worked on the new meeting-house."—Jan. 28, 1730, was kept a day of fasting and prayer, to humble ourselves before God for our past trespasses, and to implore the divine blessing on us and all our concerns, more especially on the solemn transactions that are before us," which were the formation of the church. Comfort Starr was one of the signers of the covenant. He appears to have been a prominent man in both town and church affairs, as his name is frequent on the records; the deeds call him a husbandman. Dec. 22, 1773, in Thompson, Ct.; brought up in Guilford, Vt., where, April 18, 1796, his father deeded him his farm, which he carried on, giving special attention to the raising of fine horses and other good stock; a respected citizen, taking an active interest in all public affairs, and a member of the School Board for many years. He was fond of music, and a good singer. One of the sweet memories of that home was the long winter evenings around the old hearth-stone, with music book and tuning-fork, teaching and leading his happy family choir. The music of the spinning-wheel and the rattle of the loom were familiar in the house, while the webs of linen and of wool showed the industry of the good mother, as she wove the marriage outfit for her daughters. In 1835 he sold his farm in Guilford, removed to Rowe, Franklin Co., Mass., and bought another near to the residence of his son, where, with the honor and respect of the entire community, he d. He was an honored and respected citizen of Simcoe, Canada, in the furniture business. At the breaking out of the Canadian rebellion of 1837 he refused to take the oath of allegiance to the British crown; not being a citizen, he wished to remain neutral in the conflict. The excitement was intense; every Yankee was looked upon with suspicion, and he was obliged to wear the red badge in the street to save him from insult and annoyance. The town was filled with soldiers; property depreciated in value, and his business ruined. In this depressed condition of affairs he sold out at a sacrifice, crossed the lake to Laona, N. Y., and commenced business again; after a few years returned to Vt.; lived at Brattleboro, Bennington, and at Northampton, Mass., where he d. his Master's service to the end. In Oct., 1844, he went to Canada, and devoted two years to study and teaching, while ever active in Christian effort; in 1845 was licensed to preach the gospel, and in Oct., 1846, ordained a Free Will Baptist minister; studied theology in the F. W. Biblical School at Whitestown, N. REV. NORMAN STARR,—son of Paul 734,—b. Feb. 25, 1823, in Gerry, N. Y.; converted at the age of 17, he united with the Free Will Bap. church, and being a young man of unusual promise, was licensed in 1843 to preach the gospel. After one year's evangelistic work in Canada, he entered the F. W. Bap. Biblical School at Whitestown, N. Y., in 1845, graduated in 1849, ordained a minister in the autumn of that year, and settled pastor of the

F. W. Bap. church at Chagrin Falls, O., and subsequently at North East, Pa.; in 1854 went to Mich., laboring with the churches in Oakland Co., and finally became pastor of the church at New Haven, Macomb Co. He was not an apt scholar when a boy, but after his conversion gave himself to diligent study and intense application, especially of the Bible. A copy of the New Testament he carried with him at all times, reading it at every spare moment, while at labor and at rest, until it really became "the man of his counsel and the guide of his life." His preaching was characterized by earnestness and love, that put him at once in sympathy with his hearers, and made his word impressive. His faith was strong, so that eternal things were to him as real as those that are seen, and was thus in readiness for his sudden departure. He left home to attend the "Quarterly Meeting" held at Richfield, Mich., on Saturday, Sept. 16, 1865, and preached the sermon. Having finished an earnest, fervent discourse, was about to sit down, when, brushing his handkerchief over his eyes, as if something obscured his vision, suddenly fell unconscious in the pulpit, and faintly breathing for an hour, he thus entered upon his eternal rest.

DANIEL SPENCER EMMONS STARR,—son of Isaac 758, Ebenezer 752, Comfort 723, Comfort 722, John 10, Dr. Comfort 1,—b., according to his mother's Bible, March 18, 1807, but by his his own record March 13, 1810, at "Moodus," East Haddam, Ct.; worked at his trade of stone mason, and taught school in the winter. About 1835 he went to Butler Co., Alabama, peddling clocks, where he married, and in 1847 settled at Montgomery,

Ala.; worked at his trade, built a house and shop, kept a small store; was respected by the community, and by industry had accumulated quite a property. He was honest, frank, decided, and outspoken in his opinions,—not always judicious in that respect,—a kind-hearted man, he gathered the poor white children of the neighborhood into his house and taught them to read; attended the Pres. church, and thus lived undisturbed in peace and quietness until the opening of the civil war. He had kept a Journal for years, containing the record of his parents, the history of his own life from his youth, his experiences and observations in the South, his opinion upon slavery, and all other subjects that came under his notice. His neighbors knew of the existence of this manuscript, for he frequently referred to it in their presence to learn some date or decide some question in dispute. At the beginning of the war he was urged to enlist in the Confederate service, which he boldly refused, saying “he would never fight for slavery, nor have anything whatever to do with the war, that they could never whip the North, nor be successful in establishing slavery,” etc. He never concealed his sentiments; but as a quiet, inoffensive man he dwelt in security unmolested until 1863, a year of intense excitement both North and South, when he was reported to the Vigilance Committee as an enemy to the South. On Tuesday evening March 10, 1863, he was sitting with his wife in the doorway of his house, when three armed soldiers entered the yard to arrest him. He demanded for what cause, and attempted resistance; but in vain. He was seized and taken to the jail, and the Journal found and taken with them, and at the trial, on the following Saturday, was the only evidence against him. The judge decided the book to be private property; that it was his right and privilege to express therein whatever views he pleased upon any subject, etc., and he acquitted him. The decision was received with evident dissatisfaction by an angry crowd, and it was thought prudent for his safety that he should remain in jail over Sunday; but that evening, March 14, 1863, a little before 9 o'clock, a band of men went to the jail, took him out by force, led him through the quiet part of the town to the vacant ground near the present station of the Eufaula R. R. and hanged him to a tree. Early the next morning the friends were informed of his fate. They sent and cut down the body, and that evening, after a short funeral service at the house, buried it in the beautiful cemetery within sight of the place of his martyrdom, and by the side of his little daughter, on whose gravestone are the following lines composed by himself :

Beneath this stone in sweet repose
I laid a mother's dearest pride,
A flower that scarce had waked to life
And light and beauty ere it died.

God in his wisdom has recalled
The precious boon his love had given,
And though the casket moulders here,
The gem is sparkling now in heaven.

The Montgomery Advertiser, of March 17, 1863, published the following account of

“THE EXECUTION OF STARR.

“We noticed several days since the arrest of a notorious character glorying in the name of Daniel S. E. Starr, who emigrated from Connecticut to this State over twenty-five years ago, and has been engaged during the interval in a system of villainy almost without a parallel in the history of crime. The book, in manuscript, which he confessed he had written, contained overwhelming evidence of the most diabolical designs against the people and institutions of the South. He was preparing the book in anticipation of the coming of his Yankee brethren, and admitted to a witness that it would be worth a hundred thousand dollars to his family in that event. Under this state of facts the vigilance committee, after setting upon his case at several different meetings, concluded to turn him over to the courts, where, if justice was meted out to him, he would be hanged, otherwise he might evade the law and escape. As soon as this decision was known on Saturday evening, it was determined, on the part of the citizens, to hang him without further delay, and accordingly, on Sunday morning, his body was found dangling from a tree in a convenient portion of the city, whither the victim had been taken from the jail the preceding night and hung. His remains were taken down by his family friends.”

Every effort has been made by the family to obtain the book, but it has never been seen since his death, and was doubtless destroyed.—He m. Sept. 3, 1837, SOPHRONIA, dau. of VINCENT and FRANCES (Sexton) HARRISON, b. Mch. 3, 1817, in Clark Co., Miss.

APPENDIX.

A.

The following are copies of ancient records, found in my researches, of those bearing the name of Starr who are not connected in any way with the family of our ancestor, Dr. Comfort Starr.

THOMAS STARES, came from London in 1634, at the age of 31 years.

B.

STARR FAMILY OF NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

This very respectable family are descended from THOMAS and HANNAH STARR, and, it is highly probable, belong to the Dr. Comfort Starr line, but extensive research in that direction has failed to discover the connecting link, therefore the full record of the family is not herein given, but enough to assist any one interested in making further investigations. My opinion is, that this Thomas

Starr is identical with 165 A (or perhaps a son of the latter); that he went from Middletown to Lebanon, Ct., where the town records show: "John, son of Thomas and Hannah Starr, was born Nov. 23, 1732," afterward to Northampton, where his name first appears on the record at the birth of his son Thomas, Mch. 27, 1740. His name never occurs on the record only in connection with his wife. No gravestone or date of his death has been found; but his widow Hannah d.
